Water board falls short on rationing decisions

By NANCY HILLS

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District board struggled with a decision on a Phase IV/40 percent rationing plan Monday night, eventually putting many of the hard choices on hold.

The board did agree that there should be a per-person ration for residents and a sliding scale for commercial uses.

"We have had figures of $156 million a year. I don't want to belittle economic impacts of a moratorium, but I think that is a bit excessive.
— Dick Heuer

It was unable to reach a consensus, however, on such items as a water connection moratorium or the specifics of the commercial sliding scale.

The debate on those issues is still open and the board will conduct a special public hearing on Phase IV rationing at 7 p.m., Monday, March 27 at Monterey City Council Chambers.

After that meeting, the board is scheduled to consider an urgency rationing ordinance at its April 10 meeting. That ordinance will take effect May 1 and should increase the required cutback by a currently unspecified amount.

Currently the peninsula is in 20 percent mandatory rationing, Phase III.

The water situation remains very serious and rainfall and runoff still well behind normal.

There is the remote chance that if rains and runoff are sufficient, the peninsula could remain in 20 percent rationing.

While keeping the ration level at that percentage is still a distant goal, Director Dick Heuer expressed his hope that the peninsula may only have to go to 30 percent and not 40 percent rationing.

That hope is based on two factors that have briefly, at least, improved the water outlook:

• California-American Water Co. reported that water production is down from last year in February by about 41 percent. That is twice the district's goal of 20 percent rationing.

"That is really, really encouraging," said Linda Schulke of the water district while giving the board the news.

Schulke added to that it was a "tough time" for everyone and the community should be congratulated.

• District engineer Andy Bell told the board that runoff from the recent storms, which actually produced very little rain, has been higher that expected and the aquifer appears to be refilling.

"We don't know why, but it could be that the watershed is saturated," he said.

Water levels around some of the big Cal-Am wells have risen from about 100 feet below the surface to about 70 feet below since December, he said.

That is still below normal, but an improvement.

The water supply situation remains critical and Bell told the board that rainfall at Los Padres Dam, which is near the watershed area in Ventana Wilderness, was registered at 1.84 inches in February. Normal rainfall at the dam for that month is 4.12 inches.

Though the March rains appear to have a greater runoff than expected, February runoff was 88 percent below what is normal, Bell explained.

Systemwide, usable storage equaled 19,164 acre feet, or 57 percent of capacity at the end of February, Bell's report to the board said.

That is with the highest water use months still to come before the rainy season begins again.

•

WITH THAT news starting off the meeting, two hours later the board began to tackle the provisions of a water rationing ordinance.

The two most hotly debated items of the ordinance were the imposition of a water connection moratorium and the provisions of rationing for the commercial district.

With architect and director Paul Davis stepping down because of potential conflicts of interest, the board was unable to round up the necessary votes to either accept or reject the moratorium.

Schulke had told the board that 52 new permits issued in January are estimated to use about 4 acre feet in total, in February, 98 permits added up to a projected 98 acre feet in total. In 1988, new connections, without including remodels, were projected to add at least 125 acre feet to water current demand.

The peninsula uses about 17,500 acre feet to almost 18,000 acre feet in a normal year.

Shulke warned the board that there appears to be a "rush" to get applications in for permits now that the board is discussing imposing a moratorium.

Directors voting for a moratorium were 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman and Heuer. Board chairman Nick Lombardo and directors Jim Hughes and Billy DeBerry cast the negative votes.

Those voting against the moratorium cited the severity of the economic hardship versus the small amount of water saved as the deciding factor against imposing the restriction.

Those who voted for the ban on new connections, also cited economic factors, finding that the repercussions would be much less than predicted.

The economic losses would be small compared to the loss of trust from the community and the danger of permitting new water users while unable to serve the current ones, Strasser Kauffman and Heuer said.

To allow new construction while rationing existing users, makes "a sham out of any talk about equity," Strasser Kauffman said.

"You cannot enlarge the pie while asking people to take a smaller and smaller piece," she added.

Strasser Kauffman and Heuer favored a moratorium that would permit applications currently in the governmental process to go forward and allows remodels that do not increase water use.

"We have had figures of $156 million a year. I don't want to belittle economic impacts of a moratorium, but I think that is a bit excessive," Heuer said.

Projecting construction economy numbers from the district's connection charges, he said he believed the figure was more in the $26 million range, but only one-half of that would affect the economy.

"That is still a significant impact," Heuer said, however it is very hard for the public to understand why they are rationing when new connections are coming on line.

Strasser-Kauffman agreed.

"We have heard a lot about economic hardship, but there are other kinds of hardships. Quite frankly, much of our community is retired and not tied to this economy, but they're still going to be asked to suffer," she said.

"It is a major hardship for those individuals not to be able to water their garden, have visitors, invite someone to dinner," she added. "I ask whether the economic hardship is harder than the psychological hardship."

Strasser Kauffman said she believed "this issue was settled" last year when the board discussed Phase III rationing and all agreed that Phase IV was much more serious and a moratorium would probably be put in place then.

"We determined than that Phase III was an inconvenience and Phase IV is serious," she said.

Strasser Kauffman added that remodels, a major factor in the construction trade in the area, was not for the most part going to be curtailed.

Hughes was of a different mind, stating that "somehow I have a little problem with this one. We have divorced the fact that people who work are also residents."

'I would not support a moratorium. I am reminded by what the Democrats said...that 'If it's the other person that's out of work, it's a recession. If it's you that's out of work, it's a depression. We aren't talking about economic hardship. We are talking about economic devastation.'
— Nick Lombardo

"We keep rocking the boat that keeps us afloat," he said, speaking of the business sector. "We're talking about people's livelihood."

"My mind has not been made before now," Lombardo said, "but it is made up now...statements by directors Hughes and Strasser Kauffman helped to do that.

"I would not support a moratorium. I am reminded by what the Democrats said — and

Sam where are you?

Dear Editor:

Is it any wonder that the voters turned down the parcel tax initiative last week? What with people winning 13, 20 and $40 million in the state lottery, that alone is a big turn-off for any sensible, thinking person.

Knowing how desperate the educational system is, I believe the voters of California were totally mislead by the proponents of the Lottery. The average voter I am sure thought that he, and the school systems, would come out winners and therefore voted for it.

What must the people of California do to have the Lottery totally restructured?

As I understand it, it would take the California Legislature to accomplish this. Are you listening Sam Farr? Let's start a movement.

If in the unlikely circumstance I should win $40 million the schools would get a large portion of it and you can quote me folks.

Take a stand

Dear Editor:

I have just finished reading an article in the Pine Cone (March 9), that council member Elinor Laiolo voted against a moratorium on new water meter hook-ups during our water shortage problem. (Elinor is Carmel's representative on the committee to the water management board.)

This disturbs me because I feel that new water hook-ups do not make any sense at all during our water shortage.

As I understand it from speaking with Elinor, she was not expressing the views of the Carmel City Council. I want the council to take a stand on this matter.

Schools lose

Dear Editor:

The failure of the Carmel school bond was no surprise to me. The taxpayers are not unsympathetic to the needs of our schools, but taxes are just too high and getting higher. The override taxes that we have been asked to approve of late, each "a very merited need," but pushed by a vocal minority of "do-gooders" who think up ideas and expect the rest of us to pay for them.

Case in point: the Lottery. It was supposed to finance all school needs forever. At least that was the message that kept coming through the ads. Well, it passed and the Legislature blythely syphoned off all the money they figured they could, leaving the schools in worse shape than before.

It would be nice if they had levied a good healthy tax on the profits the lottery outfit makes and given that to the schools without letting the California Legislature get their mitts on the revenue it raised.

Getting back to Carmel schools' problem; if we weren't paying for paramedics, a community center, and pretty soon a big dam bond, the schools wouldn't have such a tough time getting the necessary two-thirds vote for necessities.

Wasted money

Dear Editor:

I guess that I will never understand our government agencies or our elected representatives. I wonder about the so-called intelligence of the ones chosen to make decisions for us.

During the past several months I have repeatedly heard about the shortage of available transportation funds. We have had a statewide initiative (that failed), extensive debate about a gasoline tax increase and now our county supervisors are considering a sales tax increase.

With all of this so-called "shortage of funds," then why does Sen. Mello, supervisors Karas and Strasser Kauffman continue to support the unnecessary $30 million Hatton Canyon Freeway through Carmel? You would think that with this revenue shortage our representatives would be looking for ways to save money, not spend it. There are at least four less expensive alternatives to the most expensive Caltrans proposal; any of which would solve the problem.

We also hear so much about our representatives being so environmentally sensitive. Some even travelling to Washington D.C. to oppose offshore oil drilling. Why don't these representatives start worrying about the environmental destruction of Hatton Canyon that will happen in our "back yards" if Caltrans is allowed to build a massive LA-type freeway through Carmel?

I will never support any tax increase for transportation purposes when our agencies and elected representatives lie at public hearings, mislead the public and insist on wasting millions of our dollars on unnecessary projects such as the Hatton Canyon Freeway proposal. Our representatives should put their efforts into stopping this project before any more tax dollars are wasted.

Dangerous pursuit

Dear Editor:

Monday, Feb. 6 at 4:30 p.m. I went to our post office on Dolores and Fifth to mail a letter and pick up my mail. In the small entryway a Spanish-speaking family, mother, father, sister and brother, teenagers, stood before the stamp machine. The boy had a red skateboard he was "worrying" back and forth underfoot.

I put my letter in the slot and turned to go around to pick up my mail. The boy pushed the skateboard right under my foot and I crashed down on the stone floor, screaming. The family disappeared out the door.

Police came, as did an ambulance, and eventually I was at the hospital. X-rays taken and a shattered left femur between knee and hip operated on by Dr. Maino and Dr. James using a metal plate and wires to hold the bones together.

Nine painful days in the hospital, and now at home with Carmel Foundation's wheelchair, walker, and frozen foods put in my freezer. Nursing care each morning to help me and my son's care to help me get to bed at night. Such an outpouring of concern and flowers and cards are sustaining me. It will be a long recovery.

Is there a lesson to this story? I'm sure neither the police nor the post office permits skateboards in crowded places. Oddly, there was no mention of the police nor ambulance call in the Herald. Why? It was on "private" property.

Perhaps we need a peninsula skateboard area for young people to practice their skills. I'm sure it is good exercise and know it must be fun, but it is a grave danger on the streets and sidewalks.

My medical bills will be horrendous, my recovery slow but sure. All my volunteer work is on hold at the moment and I do thank all of my friends who are "filling in" for me. In the meantime, I'm thankful for God's healing grace and for all the friends and neighbors who are helping me.

GUEST EDITORIAL

For sane water

DESPITE YEARS of warnings, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board is shattered. Its binge in trying to build a new dam on the Carmel River is in tatters.

A number of us have been consistent critics of the board's wonderland of waste, in my case going back 30 years to the original water district which was abolished in disgust after the drought of the mid-1970s. A little more roasting here will go a long way for sane water.

From the beginning, the board's bureaucracy inched along with expensive studies, reports and massive statistics done over and over. The result: zilch. The bureaucrats aced out a gullible board, bloated an empire and gobbled up a trusting public—with a god-sent blank check.

For lack of foresight, the board is thrashing around without a project. It has a not-made-here problem. It can't come to grips with reality. It still wants a fancy project such as enlarging an old dam. Clever bureaucrats love that—it's good for another 10 years. Increasing storage by removing silt is done around the world. But, that's too simple.

The water board puts drinking water on major landscapes—golf courses, the Presidio, highways and parks. Meanwhile, about 26,000 acre-feet of rainfall on roofs, parking lots and streets is wasted each year in storm drains to the ocean. A small part targeted for irrigation would do wonders.

As late as last fall the board could have acted on emergency proposals to avert today's rationing. But no, it stood fast on bureaucratic control of water.

On the plus side, the public has come up with an answer to narrow and sluggish bureaucrats: a new reservoir, in large or small size on a side creek canyon to be gifted by Clint Eastwood, which would draw and store excess flows from the Carmel River during wet years.

For both the short and long term, the concept of off-stream storage is excellent. Water can be held in a few or many ponds of varying sizes. For quick water next year, some smaller ones can be completed by next fall under urgency rules. There are dozens of sites, some directly on the peninsula and some near Seaside. The plus points of this flexible system: spreading risks to have ready water in event of earthquake damage to other projects; low overall costs by financing most units on pay-as-you-go; and, add-on units matched to actual community growth.

The Carmel River environment is a serious matter. It can be restored with simple "percolation ponds" on side creeks to trap and hold excess runoff headed for the ocean. The water then seeps underground to fill well water basins which lie along the river. This step is equally crucial to stop near-at-hand contamination at overpumped wells—our main water sources—from salt water intrusion or agricultural and septic toxics. Either event would be a catastrophe.

The off-stream concept put forth by Eastwood would bust up a bureaucratic playground. A system of off-stream ponds is so workable that it should move up front as the project of choice against which other proposals are tested—in the public mind if not the water board's. One warning: the water board's top bureaucrats are still in charge of official information. Look for them to undermine a water plan for off-stream ponds inasmuch as a small administrative office is all that's needed to oversee local contractors who will get the job done.

We can step forward by erasing the clutter. A do-nothing water board which again goofs is gambling the very value of our homes, trades and businesses. Its self-imposed water crisis almost guarantees a water disaster unless we, the public, act.

Luckily, we have a breakthrough. Our best shot now is to heal our wounds, pull people together and get on with a water system which will rank with the best in the nation.

Administering water

Dear Editor:

All of us, residents of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, have now received a pamphlet explaining the importance and severity of our Phase III water rationing program.

I was at the Spanish Bay Inn the other day. In their visitors' restrooms, no cautionary notice about the water emergency was in evidence, while at the same time individual cloth hand towels are provided, which require constant laundering. This is one example of unconcerned water use by the peninsula's hospitality industry. How does the industry actually implement the required 20 percent cutback? Does it indeed do so?

Our residential meter shows a reduction of 22 percent for these first seven weeks of rationing, compared with a similar period in 1988. Meanwhile, the district announced that the overall rate of conservation for the month of January was only 16 percent, as opposed to the required 20 percent.

The water management district should prepare a no-nonsense rationing pamphlet specifically for visitors, and require that a copy be presented to each hotel or motel guest at the time of registration.

The fair administration of water rationing concerns all of us, so come and express your views at the Monterey City Council chambers, 7:30 p.m., Monday, March 13, when a Phase IV (40 percent cut in water use) is to be discussed.

Supes impose height limits in Carmel Meadows

By DAVID LELAND

COUNTY SUPERVISORS on Tuesday unanimously forwarded to the state Coastal Commission a resolution limiting residential height in Carmel Meadows to 18 feet.

'You've got to stop it (taller residences) sometime. It's better to stop it now, not later. We're trying to protect the public viewshed.'

— William Herbert

The resolution, which scales down the height limit by 6 feet, will be heard by the Coastal Commission during the next "few months," according to the county planning staff.

The resolution will not affect the Claude Keyzers project, which was approved by the Monterey County Planning Commission and has been appealed to the board by a Carmel Meadows neighbor. The height of that project is close to 24 feet.

This week's action by the board brings Carmel Meadows in line with Carmel Point, which last year put an 18-foot height limit on buildings, and also limited bulk. There is no floor-area ratio planned for Carmel Meadows because most of the lots are larger than those on Carmel Point.

The board this week responded to increased fears by Carmel Meadows neighbors who believed the area was in danger of losing its coastal character.

Carmel Meadows is located just south of the state-owned Odello artichoke fields on the west side of Highway 1.

"You've got to stop it (taller residences) sometime," said William Herbert. "It's better to stop it now, not later. We're trying to protect the public viewshed."

If adopted by the Coastal Commission, the resolution will affect both the 10 vacant lots in the subdivision and all remodels in the future.

"There needs to be some moderation in the building plans and people need to work with the land," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman.

She added that the board was carrying out the will of the neighbors and "was not imposing our (board's) standards."

Since adopting the local coastal plan, the board has been reticent to amend the document, but this action further protects the environment, she said.

"This (resolution) is more restrictive rather than permissive in interpreting our local coastal plans," said Strasser Kauffman.

Currently the county planning staff has one application pending for a residence that would stand about 22 feet tall.

The resolution, which received support from both the Carmel Meadows Homeowners Association and the Highlands Bixby Advisory Committee, did not get a thumbs-up from those who want to develop their property.

"Having a bunch of little squat houses would not enhance the beauty of the Carmel Meadows area," said Jim Ditmer, who wants to build a split-level home on his property he purchased in 1980. "It would be a considerable loss to us as a family."

Attorney Brian Finegan, repesenting the Portola Corp., which is developing 7.8 acres into 15 single-family lots, told the board that the adjacent homes are 30 feet and his clients cannot build two-story homes with less than a 24-foot height limit.

'Having a bunch of little squat houses would not enhance the beauty of the Carmel Meadows area. It would be a considerable loss to us as a family.'

— Jim Ditmer

If adopted, the resolution will also not affect those who already hold permits, such as Jeanette Brown, who is planning to add on to her home.

"I like my neighbors very much," she said. "But I cannot go along with them on this one."

Agreement offered by water board to water protesters

By NANCY HILLS

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District board opened its public review of a water rights agreement with major private pumpers in Carmel Valley, including water board chairman Nick Lombardo's Rancho Canada Golf Club.

The agreement has already come under fire from boardmember Dick Heuer and former board member Patricia Bernardi, both Carmel Valley residents.

'This is the mechanism how major properties will get water for development though they are not in the county's water allocation.'

— Dick Heuer

The settlement is scheduled for the board's meeting April 10.

Two other golf courses, Carmel Valley Ranch and Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, retirement home Hacienda Carmel and farmer/property owner Leonard Williams are also part of that agreement.

"This is the mechanism how major properties will get water for development though they are not in the county's water allocation," Heuer said.

That includes a 175-room hotel planned by Lombardo at Rancho Canada, a disputed service center at the Williams property and subdivision at Quail Meadows Lodge.

According to the agreement, the recipient of the water rights would be able to assign a portion of his or her water rights to California-American Water Co.

That would give the developer of the property potable water to construct and maintain structures.

The water pumped directly from the aquifer and not treated by private pumpers can only be used on turf or irrigation but if the water rights are traded to Cal-Am, treated water would be available for human consumption. They would have to pay the hook-up fee.

The agreement also mandates that the pumpers can be rationed by the district during a drought and that the wells will be metered. The district cannot ration the pumpers more than residents, the agreement also states.

If accepted, the agreement settles a major water rights dispute before the district's dam project goes before state regulatory agencies.

Heuer, in a written statement, referred to the agreement as a "sweetheart deal" for developers.

The agreement also permits the holder of the water rights to sell it anywhere within California-American Water Co.'s system. Before that can happen it must be agreed to by the district board.

It will be part of the negotiations with the state Water Resources Control Board when the district negotiates for water rights for the proposed dam.

The agreement released on Monday, if approved, would set the amount of water the involved private pumpers are permitted to take out of the ground after a dam is constructed.

The group filed its "protest" in 1983 when the district filed with the WRCB for the proposed project on Carmel River.

The WRCB has yet to determine if the water under the river and in the aquifer is legally "underflow."

If declared underflow, that means the water moves from one property to another rather than staying under one site.

Since it moves from one property to another, downstream users are dependent upon upstream users not draining the resource. Hence, water rights negotiations set how much each person, agency, business or utility can remove from the water supply so everyone gets an adequate share.

The advent of the new water supply project triggered concerns about maintaining pumping rights. Fourteen protests have been filed in all. The district wishes to settle them before the WRCB hearings.

The agreement permits the pumpers to use 3.8 acre feet of water for every acre of cultivated "turf."

It is not based on the amount of land owned by the property. Rancho Canada Golf Course owns 271 acres, but not all of it is cultivated turf.

Water district counsel David Laredo told the board that the number 3.8 acre feet per year per acre was derived through studies at a California university and comparison of Carmel Valley golf course use.

Planners to discuss motels, condominiums

NEW HOTELS, motels and condominiums are a up for a general plan amendment that will prohibit their construction at the next Carmel Planning Commission meeting.

Also on the agenda is another request for a home demolition of a single house on one lot to build two houses on the same site.

The planning commission will meet at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, March 22 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

The commission is charged by the city council with clarifying the general plan so that it clearly prohibits new hotels, motels and condominiums in town.

The council tackled the hotel and motel question in February when the planning commission staff requested a policy ruling about the general plan's direction on that issue.

The council unanimously found that the new hostelries were prohibited and directed the commission to clarify that in the general plan.

The commission reviewed condominiums in March and found, after some discussion, that it also wished the general plan to prohibit them.

The finding was triggered by a request by Cedric Choi, who has requested to build four condomimiums on Mission Street in the R-4 district.

The proposed specific plan for the area prohibits condominiums, but the current zoning laws allow the structures.

The city council was concerned that condominiums are easily changed into timeshare units, but others argue that eliminating condominiums also eliminates a type of housing.

The commission will also consider a demolition for a house on Carmelo that straddles two lots. Contractor Chris Tescher said that he will construct two homes on the lots.

The house that will be demolished is not of any architectural or historical significance, Tescher said.

Home demolition petition circulating

A PETITION to require public hearings and and environmental impact report before homes 50 years or older are demolished in being circulated by Enid Sales.

Sales, active in Carmel Heritage and a member of the city's ad hoc historical preservation committee, started the petition last week after growing concern about the number of homes being demolished in the residential district.

This year, the planning department reports that about eight applications for demolitions have been submitted to the city and six of those have been approved. That is as many in two months as the city normally receives in a year.

Carmel Planning Director Diane White said that the average for a year is six.

Draft EIR on water allocation released to board

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District has received a draft environmental impact report on the allocation system.

The voluminous 900-page report analyzes the different allocation schemes to the cities and a portion of Monterey County that makes up the district.

Its development was a part of the legal settlement between the City of Carmel and the water district over the allocation system.

Carmel claimed the system was unfair and required an environmental review.

The document was compiled by J. Laurence Mintier & Associates of Sacramento.

The report also analyzes the environmental impact of raising or lowering the overall pumping limit on the peninsula.

River School registration open for fall

Water board delays ration vote

I say that because I am Republican — that 'If it's the other person that's out of work, it's a recession. If it's you that's out of work, it's a depression. We aren't talking about economic hardship. We are talking about economic devastation.''

The board needed four votes to come to a decision on the issue, but with Strasser Kauffman and Heuer voting for a moratorium and Lombardo, Hughes and DeBerry voting against, two separate motions to settle the question failed.

•

THE BOARD reached one agreement about the commercial district rationing — that the percentage cut should be different for different types of businesses.

The board could not decide on the specifics of the sliding scale because of a difference in philosophy and the still undecided question of what percentage of water use reduction the district will need to mandate to get through the summer and have a reserve for next year.

The cutback projected for commercial rationing is based on a 1977 scheme, though the reduction was higher than in that year. But the structure remains and the same businesses were given more water than other businesses.

Golf courses, a major bone of contention for residents, would be cut by 50 percent.

Other proposed percentage cuts included hotels/motels by 25 percent and 30 percent respectively; retail/offices by 20 percent; and restaurants, 20 percent.

What the final figure will actually be will depend on what percent the entire peninsula needs to be cut as well as other factors.

Changing of the guard

THE*Pine Cone* has reorganized a portion of its advertising department to fill in the void created by the departure of long-time ad rep Julianne Wutke, who has gone on maternity leave and will also assist husband Gregg Wutke in his photography business in between her midnight feedings. She will also stay on as a consultant to the newspaper.

Filling Julianne's slot, which encompasses areas north of Carmel is Karen Carlson, The Pine Cone's former office manager and, most recently, the ad rep covering the area south of Ocean Avenue to Big Sur.

Taking over her position from Ocean south is Deborah Hill. Most recently Hill served as sales manager for The Guide Magazine, associate publisher of C fashion tabloid and as account executive for the Monterey, Carmel and Pacific Grove areas for radio station KNRY.

Let the credits roll... Before even one foot of film could be shot, Walt Disney Pictures has cancelled plans to shoot Turner and Hooch in our fair town.

If you'll remember, Henry Winkler was quite taken with Carmel-by-the-Sea and simply had to film his movie here. Well, with Winkler off the movie because of "creative differences" with the film's star Tom Hanks, the production crew has selected Pacific Grove as its primary location.

Production manager Michele Ader told me that the change was a combination of the director's idea of what he wanted the town in the film to look like and also the crew wanted more flexibility than Carmel had to offer.

The permit given the film by the Carmel City Council limited the amount of days that the crew could shoot in town and also offered strict guidelines of where filming could take place.

Deborah adds that she uses only fresh ingredients and little or no salt, sugar, flour, fat or preservatives. Lemon or lime juice and herbs and spices are the only seasonings used.

Land purchase... Landmark Land, a Carmel-based company, acquired several sites on Kiawah Island, S.C.

The $35 million purchase includes the island's resort operations and amenities, and will see the spot become a major conference, resort and sports destination featuring one of the top golf courses on the East Coast.

Landmark also plans to develop two new beachfront hotels, a 40,000-square-foot health spa, and 50,000-square-foot retail village on the island. The total investment by Landmark in the Kiawah Island community could reach $250 million over the next five years.

The renovation and management of the resort properties will be handeled by Oak Tree Hotels, an affiliate of Landmark. Oak Tree also operates the Carmel Valley Ranch Resort, as well as properties nationwide.

They've moved... The law offices of Gilles & Nicora have moved its Carmel office to 2100 Garden Road, Suite H in Monterey.

"We basically needed more space for our expanding firm and wanted to provide a more convenient location for our clients," explains Jeffery Gilles. "Now we have additional parking and we are close to the airport. The move to Monterey really provides easier access for all our clients, even those clients in Carmel."

Gilles & Nicora offer a diversified practice that encompasses business law, labor management, commercial law and personal interest law, including real estate, estate planning, probate and litigation matters.

REMEMBER WHEN????

MORE SUBSTANTIAL BUILIDNG URGED

There was a slight earthquake shock here last Saturday morning, reports Bailey Willis, president of the Seismological Society of America, at Stanford University, which might easily have passed unnoticed, but is somewhat significant. It occurred just before 3:35 a.m. and was preceded by a sound of vibration, and began with a long, undulating motion that made some cottages creak, and ended with a sharp shock. It probably did not last five seconds altogether.

It would not be worth noticing except that it serves to remind us that this is an earthquake region, in which it is wise to take reasonable precautions against damage and injury. Unfortunately our memories are short and we soon forget that Nature goes her way without regard to our neglect of her repeated warnings. Since 1850 there have been 10 severe earthquakes in the coast ranges of Northern California.

QUARANTINE FOR RABIES PROBABLE

That the state board of health would place a quarantine on dogs and cats on the peninsula because of a rabies outbreak appeared probable following a meeting yesterday presided over by Drs. John Sharpe and Dwight M. Bissell, county health officers.

A meeting to obtain the popular sentiment was held yesterday afternoon at Few Memorial Hall in Monterey and among those attending were Dr. D.T. MacDougall, S.P.C.A. head, Miss Hazel Watrous, city councilman of Carmel.

The last time a quarantine was placed on the peninsula only four cases had been reported. Already 17 human beings have been under treatment and a dozen cases of animal rabies in every part of the peninsula with the exception of Carmel have been reported.

The Carmel city council last Tuesday night gave final reading to, and adopted, an ordinance placing the question of the purchase of Sunset School on the April 14 ballot.

The adjourned meeting of the council also gave first reading to an amendment of the city's hostelry tax ordinance and an ordinance permitting sidewalks to be narrowed to eight feet on a section of Junipero which is to be resurfaced before this summer.

SEAWALL CONSULTANT HIRED; SAYS IT WAS BUILT WRONG

The long-delayed seawall reconstruction project moved forward Monday evening. The Carmel City Council approved the expenditure of $2,800 for an engineer to design new means of cliff protection along parts of Scenic Road.

The council could not agree, however, on whether it prefers large rocks or a concrete retaining wall to protect the eroding cliffs. The rock protection would cost about $70,000. A retaining wall could cost more than twice that amount.

Construction of the seawall on Scenic may have been an engineering blunder, a structural engineer charged with designing the new seawall told the Pine Cone last week.

The seawall eroded faster than the sandstone base that protects the cliffs, according to John Raggett, owner of the Monterey firm of Steven H. Sassoon and Associates..

Does that mean the seawall should never have been built? the Pine Cone asked.

"I guess that's correct," Raggett replied.

VIETNAM VET WANTS MEMORIAL SHIFTED TO DEVENDORF PARK

The lost and forgotten Carmel memorial to killed and missing soldiers of the Vietnam War may be relocated to a more prominent site in the city.

The memorial, a large rock on which about a dozen copper nameplates are attached, is located in the center island on Ocean and Lincoln avenues.

"Because of its location at a busy intersection in Carmel, I feel that people just don't notice our Vietnam memorial," said Ken O'Donovan, a Carmel police officer who lives in Marina.

O'Donovan has made the relocation of the memorial to Devendorf Park his personal campaign in the city. In December, he wrote a letter to the Carmel American Legion, Post 512, to suggest the American Legion move the monument.

"Other war memorials are located at Devendorf Park," O'Donovan wrote. "However, with the display of our American flag and the scenic park as a background, I feel that this location would offer the greatest honor to our servicemen who died in Vietnam."

Hospice accepts Pebble Beach Co. offer of land

HOSPICE OF the Monterey Peninsula announced it has accepted a gift of 3.5 acres of land at the Old Capitol Site from the Pebble Beach Co. and is now ready to move ahead with its plans to build a 24-bed inpatient care center at the site by 1991.

Off Highway 1, across from the Del Monte Shopping Center, the site is in a secluded box canyon, described by Hospice officials as "ideally suited for a care center of this type."

Stephen F. Eimer, executive vice president of the Pebble Beach Co., said in a letter to Hospice chairman Robert Brower, "This will allow you to pursue development of this site in accordance with your own development time frame and proceed with the certainty that the site is under your control."

Hospice and Pebble Beach officials will meet with staff and council members of the City of Monterey to pursue the city's previous offer to "fast-track" Hospice land use permit requests.

In announcing the gift, Brower said, "We are sincerely grateful to the Pebble Beach Co. for its most generous gift. This will allow the plans for our care center to continue on schedule and at the site we believe is the most favorable."

At the same time, Hospice Capital Campaign Committee Chairman J. Daniel Tibbitts revealed that Hospice has obtained an additional million dollars in the form of two anonymous gifts of one half million each. This brings the amount pledged thus far to $2.4 million toward the $5 million dollar Capital Campaign goal.

"The receipt of these two incredibly generous gifts, as well as the immediate access to the land for the building, gives the Capital Campaign a terrific boost," Tibbitts said.

"This will allow us to proceed with our plans to construct a centrally located, economically efficient facility, with a pediatric unit. We are enormously pleased."

Brower further revealed that the architects for the new care center, Anshen and Allen of San Francisco, have been asked to proceed with the design for the new facility on the Old Capitol site and to develop a scale model so various regulatory bodies and the community at large will be able to see what the facility will look like.

City of Carmel wins water miser award for efforts

THE CITY of Carmel has been presented the Water Miser Club award by the water district for its "extraordinary efforts in water conservation."

According to a city press release the city has "been a leader on the Monterey Peninsula in promoting water conservation" with efforts such as purchasing low-flow toilets for resale to residents in 1986, retrofitting public facilities over the past three years, and establishing an strong ongoing public relations effort.

The city has reduced total water consumption by 11.6 percent between 1986 and 1989.

The Water Miser Club award is on display in the lobby at Carmel City Hall. For more information contact Brian Roseth, associate planner, at 624-6835.

Carmel High soccer players headed for Europe to play

By DAVID LELAND

TWO CARMEL High School athletes have been selected to take part in this summer's prestigious European-Select Cup Tour VI.

Chris Biason, 15, and George Zarate, 16, will spend the month of June playing soccer in Europe in countries such as Belgium, France, Holland, Denmark, Scotland, Sweden and Norway as a part of the Teams/USA goodwill soccer program.

The thrust of the team's play will be on competitive experience, and the average number of games fo the squad wil be 20 over a period of the 31 days.

The two youngsters should be quite proud of themselves, having been selected from 48 constestants trying out recently in Concord.

Now in its sixth year, Teams/USA selected 32 soccer players from statewide to fill its roster, which will see competition with hundreds of teams while travelling through Europe.

To say the lads are excited would be an understatement.

"I get to represent the U.S.," said Biason, adding that his country has a lot to prove overseas. "We've never been good at soccer, and now we're getting better."

Zarate, who has been playing soccer since he was a small boy, says "I want to do some travelling."

Longtime local soccer fans may remember Zarate's older brother Carlos, who starred on the soccer team at Carmel High School several years ago.

Teams/USA began in 1982 as a program to link outstanding youth soccer players with major youth tournaments in Europe and the Soviet Union.

During its first year of international competition in 1984, two Dana Cups were captured by U.S. teams and, for the first time ever, statewide select teams competed in the Soviet Union.

By 1987, the single largest youth athletic force ever was assembled to compete internationally, with 57 teams from 24 states taking part in overseas soccer play.

While financial aid is offered to players who cannot afford the $2,210 fee, both Zarate and Biason feel confident that they will be able to raise their fare by gardening — plus a little help from mom and dad.

BY PLAYING soccer in Europe this summer, John Biason hopes the raise the United State's image in the soccer arena.

CARMEL HIGH School student George Zarate says he's looking forward to playing soccer and travelling throughout Europe during the month of June.

Water distribution to local residents is now available

DUE TO continued low rainfall on the Monterey Peninsula, Carmel's Forest and Beach Department has resumed delivery of non-potable water to residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

This is a free service and is intended to assist with watering of residents' landscape, according to Gary Kelly, city forester. Deliveries will continue on a weekly basis until next winter or until the water source is exhausted.

All a resident needs to do to receive non-potable water is to call the Forest and Beach Department at 624-3543 and ask to be added to the delivery schedule. Recipients will need to provide containers (minimum size, 32 gallons, or normal trash can size), on their property within reach of the water truck's 50-foot hose.

Riviera Water Co. to discuss drought

THE BOARD of Directors of the Carmel Riviera Mutual Water Co. will meet at 5 p.m. Thursday, March 16, at the Carmel Highlands firehouse to discuss the effects of the drought and how recent capital improvements are helping the company cope with it.

Chairman Harold Seyferth said that with the recent addition of wells and storage capacity, rationing is not necessary now and probably will not be necessary for the remainder of the year.

Urging all owner-members of the not-for-profit water company and any other interested parties to attend the board meeting, Seyferth said:

"With the help of many good people, we passed through a crisis last summer when our additional wells and storage facilities were not completed on time. But now that those facilities are on-stream, we believe we can meet the needs of our owner-members this year without shortages or rationing, barring the unforeseen."

The Carmel Riviera Mutual Water Co. is located outside the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. It now serves some 135 owner-members in the Carmel Riviera-Mal Paso Creek areas south of Carmel and has 29 additional members who do not receive water now.

The company obtains water from Mal Paso Creek and from wells drilled along the streambed in the canyon. In a major upgrading of the water supply and storage systems, the company dug three new wells this past summer and installed 200,000 gallons of additional storage capacity, for a total of 380,000 gallons.

The $300,000 cost, being paid by the owner-members, also included improvements to the street piping system, a redistribution pumping plant, chlorination treatment facilities, a new stream intake system and electronic monitoring and control systems.

Park District appoints voluntary advisory committee

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Regional Park District Board of Directors appointed a volunteer Citizens Advisory Committee March 6 to help guide management activities for the new nature preserve in the upper Bixby Creek watershed.

The nine-member committee will function as an advisory group to the park district board.

Members of the group include: Lloyd Jones, Axel Adler, Donna Nye, Hillary Lipman, Todd Acheson, Alexandra Allman, Tom Deyerle, Rick Sermon, and Brian Steen. Steen represents the Big Sur Land Trust, which sold the redwood preserve to the park district in February for $1.3 million. Sermon resides in Pacific Grove and all other volunteer members of the Advisory Committee live in the Palo Colorado Canyon region. The committee represents a diverse cross section of people as well as views toward the proposed preserve. Park district manager Gary Tate will coordinate the committee.

The draft Preserve Management Plan for the new preserve has been prepared by staff and will be submitted to the Citizens Advisory Committee for review and comment. The draft Management Plan calls for the property to be operated as a day-use, hiking open space preserve accessible through a reservation system only.

Solid Gould events

SPRING is beckoning just around the corner and people were waving back a welcome this past week. Music, spring soirees, "A Taste For Art," and fashions filled the social calendar.

The top necessities in life in this area are music and rain. Not one of the 190 black tie and diamond bedecked guests complained when diamond raindrops splattered onto the floor underneath the transparent tent set up in the courtyard of the Dennis LeVetts' Pebble Beach villa. It was dry in the tent for the prelude before dinner that was geared for dancing "inside a diamond" after dinner — but alas! — the rain cancelled the dancing.

A second tent was set up for the theatricality of a dining experience to celebrate "75 Solid Gould Years" to honor composer/conductor Morton Gould.

Mrs. Thomas E. (Sherrie) McCullough was the dynamic diamond who planned this very special event. And she, and the guests, were grateful for the calming music of Richard LaSalle as the shivering arpeggios of gusting winds whipped the sides of the big dining tent. The delicious banquet, served by the staff of the Sheraton Hotel under the direction of Robert Miklitch, captured the attention as well as the tastebuds of the guests.

After Saumon au Provence, Notes Entieres de Melon, Beouf de Veau, and Salade Michelangelo (did he play the piano when he wasn't painting? Ah, well, it was delicious), were served, persistant rain droplets found their way through the dining tent just as "Ebony and Ivory" (the piece de resistance), was served. White grand pianos (edible chocolate), were filled with bittersweet "Chocolate Fantasy" (mousse with raspberries and raspberry coulis).

What a finish! Toques off to chef de cuisine Heinz Guggisberg.

After dinner at tables with orchid-filled black grand pianos, balloons, votive candles and special lighting effects, master of ceremonies Roderick L. Dewar introduced the jubilee chair Sherri (a vision in gold and black), who said, "I can't compete with God, but we have all wanted rain."

Mr. Gould, the guest of honor, was brought to the podium to receive various plaques and honors. Mr. Gould said he was very flattered by all the attention, the special birthday cake and party. "My actual birthday was last December but since composers have birthdays that go on a whole year this seems appropriate. I will remember this birthday as very special and the wettest birthday of all," he said.

"And to think," he added, "I was given this party before hearing my music. That makes all of you optimists. At this point I am ahead." Looking up at the raindrops in the tent he smiled, "Soon we will all be swimming out of here."

Alex Anderson of Pebble created the caricature of Mr. Gould used on the program and invitations and presented original works to Mr. Gould, to Mr. and Mrs. Dennis LeVett, the hosts, and to Sherrie McCullough. Norma Jean Jodges sang Happy Birthday as guests joined in.

Pat Yates headed the committee that put together the "Wine and Diamond" silent auction table which drew avid bidders before dinner. Some of the sparklers were salamanzers of La Reina Chardonnay won by Tibor Rudas (Pavarotti's agent); "Gem of a Brunch" at T. Scott Moore's home (with help of the Rod Dewars and Mae Waldroup) to the George Skous; "A Jewel of An Evening" (dinner for 10 at the Thomas McCullough home), went to the Dr. Stephen Endsleys who also bought the "Barbara Bush Pearls" and Sharon Anderson Johnston's sculpture "Avatar."

Emily Woudenberg bought the "Diamond Musical Note Pendant" donated by Jewels by Jeffrey in Carmel. Dorothy Durney bought the diamond and ruby ring given by Nader Agha. The silent auction table brought the symphony around $5,300.

The Monterey County Symphony gave the area another first. The West Coast premiere of Mr. Gould's compositions Concerto for Flute and Orchestra and Spirituals for Orchestra. The first piece was composed for flutist Donald Peck, who appeared with the orchestra as guest soloist. The piece was commissioned by the late Katherine Lewis of Carmel, who did not live to hear it.

Guest appearances of such outstanding artists as Mr. Gould and Mr. Peck were made possible because of the outstanding reputation Maestro Clark Etienne Suttle has gained for the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra.

EARLIER THE same evening those with "A Taste for Art" arrived at La Playa Hotel for a taste of a gourmet buffet and the chance to bid on tasty fine wines including that of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art's private label.

Frederick Stanley and his committee of 17 put together auction items that brought a capacity crowd of 160 people and earned some $15,000 for the Jesters to present to the museum.

Five of our top local chefs were auctioned by Jack Kenaston. That is, their services for a home dinner party went on the auction block to be snapped up by Judy Bramble (Ercolino Crugnale, Monterey Plaza Hotel); Mary Kay Higgins (David Beckwith, Central 159); and Hildegarde Mitchell (Daniel Barduzzi, the Ridge Restaurant).

Bryan Carr, who doesn't start his duties as executive chef at La Playa for three weeks came out for the auction and brought the top bid by Jean Draper. Robert Williamson (of The Covey) will prepare a dinner in the home of the Harry Timmins.

With the constant flow of the museum wine it paid off with the sale of 16 cases.

Mrs. Winifred Chrisman bought a sailboat ride for her children and grandchildren and Mary Kay Higgins won the "Carriage Ride through the Forest" donated by the Ray Freschis.

This party disbanded minutes before the downpour of rain. Or, as Polly Kenaston termed it, "music orchestrated by the sky."

While others were dining at the LeVetts or at "The Taste," more than 100 Red Cross supporters were dining in the glass gazebo bubble of the four-star restaurant, the Sardine Factory.

Bob Bath, SF general manager, introduced attending dignitaries and Ted Balestreri (SF co-owner), introduced waitpersons who would be assisting his friendly, efficient SF staff. Being tested for dexterity, balance and patience were Judges William Curtis, William Wunderlich, and John Phillips; supervisors Karin Strasser Kauffman, Sam Karas, Marc Del Piero, and Barbara Shipnuck and Assemblyman Sam Farr.

The special Red Cross Benefit Dinner menu was introduced by SF co-owner Bert Cutino. Executive director of Monterey County Chapter of the American Red Cross, Lynn Swerrie, spoke briefly about Red Cross services — filling both domestic needs and assisting with international disasters such as the devastating earthquake in the Soviet Union.

Plaques of appreciation were presented to Bert, Ted and Charles Chrietzberg. Red Cross pins were given to the celebrity waitpersons.

In honor of National Red Cross Month (March) all proceeds were generously given to the local chapter of Red Cross by The Sardine Factory.

The day before the popular evening of March 10th, almost 300 guests came to lunch at the Sheraton Hotel's San Carlos Ballroom to find out what they will be buying in the way of spring fashions by comparing "Spring Notes" at the annual Symphonie d'Elegance Symphony Guild luncheon/fashion show.

Just waiting for the first hint of spring are new bright combinations of magenta, hot pink, purple, a variety of greens, oranges and yellows. Styles include: dusters (great with your antique car), spring florals, yards of Chanel beads, assorted ruffles, ribbons, and fluffs and puffs are still in. Noted were penguin skirts and hankie hemlines. For evening, elegant black when you wish to rest your eyes from glimmering beads and sequins.

Gerry Verga brought a diversity of daytime, sport-time and eveningwear from her Gerry's Designer Fashions shop in The Barnyard. She also did the commentary for her styles as well as those from Knuffels, which outfitted youngsters from 6 months to a little past school age. All in the current adorable juppiedom style as well as the charm of English countrified floral prints.

The 25 glamorous grownup models were members of the Symphony Guild and the young models were Annette and Frances Verga (twins), Valerie Winter (6 months old), Heather Chatham (came out with mom Suzi), Elisabeth Giammona (grand-daughter of guild president Marie-Therese Taylor), Chris Cook, Alexander Brant, Michael Feather, Sarah Foley, Ashley Hightower, Katie Keeley, Alison and Justin Noseworthy and Jessica Sherrill (with grandmother Gillian Wagner).

All models entered the runway through a white trellis archway with greenery and flowers and pranced to the music of Richard LaSalle's group. White baskets of spring posies setting the mood at each table were created by Ann Supancich with decorations by Berta Melanson.

Prizes for the drawing were collected by Gerry Borovilos' reservations were handled by Nihla Knight and guild president Marie-Therese Taylor did the striking program design.

The two that worked the hardest were co-chairpersons Ann Supancich and Betty Healey with generous benefactors, sponsors and patrons making this year's annual event more financially successful than ever.

JILL BLAES, Elisa Booth, and Mary May Altenburg turn their attention to Bryan Carr, the new executive chef of La Playa Hotel during "A Taste for Art" evening. (Chuck Scardina photos.)

RIDGE RESTAURANT chef Daniel Barduzzi stood ready to serve Jesters Carl Blaes, Bill Carhart and Dr. William Snell at "A Taste for Art" at La Playa Hotel.

LYNN SWERRIE, executive director of the peninsula chapter of the American Red Cross, addressed the guests at the fund-raising dinner for the Red Cross at Sardine Factory restaurant. Celebrity waitpersons waited to go into action behind her.

JIM CORBET of Carmel (left), talked about the MPMA private wine label with Jack and Loann Haffner of Carmel Highlands at buffet/auction given by the Jesters.

KITTY AND Henry Ragsdale get the VIP treatment from celebrity waitpersons Karin Strasser Kauffman and Barbara Shipnuck, both county supervisors, at American Red Cross dinner at Sardine Factory.

To ROUND out the popular weekend, Craig and Toy Phelps invited friends to their Deer Flats home for a "send-off party" for Susan Halfpenny, "Mrs. Monterey County '89," who competes for the state title in Los Angeles on Sunday night.

Twenty friends will make the trip down for the big night to be joined by other Southern California friends and Susan's family there.

Best wishes, Susan, we'll keep our fingers crossed for you.

KEEPING THE PEACE

Many families work too hard at "peacekeeping." Maintaining a healthy, stable relationship not only requires the ability to live in harmony, but also the ability to tolerate various degrees of conflict. Families who try too hard to keep things on an even keel stop conflict before it can begin.

Families need to express feelings of anger and unhappiness as well as satisfaction and joy. Resentments develop when family members feel it is wrong to bring up negative issues.

Learning to tolerate constructive conflict is a valued skill. Counseling can assist families to develop this skill and to learn how to utilize it effectively.

If you have any questions regarding this week's subject, please feel free to call MARCIA RENNEY, licensed Marriage, Family & Child Counselor. 142 Carmelito, Monterey, 372-6599.

Hocus pocus

THE LATEST sleight of hand in the federal battle of the budget is to count the surplus income of the Social Security and other trust funds as though it is general tax revenue and therefore reduces the budget deficit.

This makes it appear as though headway is being made in reducing the deficit, while the contrary is true. And then, any trust fund surplus not used for current needs or operating expenses is borrowed by the Treasury at prevailing interest rates to fund other programs of the federal government.

I have no argument with trust funds being loaned to the Treasury, but become uneasy when I see what happened as the debt of some poorer countries became too large. They simply stopped making payments. I fear that 10 or 20 years down the road, the national debt will be astronomic with a large percent of the debt borrowed from the trust funds. If a choice must be made between repaying our trust funds or the European and Asiatic bankers, I fear the trust funds would lose out since many politicians regard these funds as general tax revenues.

I suggest that all trust funds be removed from the regular budget process. If the trust fund income is excessive or too little for its projected needs, adjust the income at its source as Congress did in 1983 for the Social Security Funds. We would then have a truer picture of the entire federal budget and just maybe, Congress would make a more serious attempt to reduce and eventually wipe out the deficit thereby ensuring Social Security benefits well into the next century.

I don't know whether it's the medical profession, the health insurance industry, and I include Medicare in the latter, or both, who are ripping us off with exorbitant premium increases and an obscene surtax.

My Medi-Gap carrier recently hit me with a 30 percent increase and told me that the increase would have been 10 to 15 percent more had Medicare not been expanded to cover major illnesses.

All I know is that unless there is some additional protection hidden in the fine print of the Medicare Catastrophic Act, my wife and I will pay a $1,600 surtax; $170.40 additional Medicare Part B premium and an extra $300 Medigap premium for a total of $2,070.40 more than I paid in 1988 for exactly the same protection. And Washington says inflation is under control and maybe next year Social Security won't need a cost of living increase.

Do I sound bitter? You bet! Maybe what we need is a proposition 103 for health insurance just like the auto insurance companies brought on themselves. Next we could regulate medical fees, since the medical profession can't seem to control their greed.

If this sounds far-fetched, look at the scene 10 years from now and, unless the medical and insurance industries clean up, I see socialized medicine an imminent reality.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

America's Irish Rich

TOMORROW IS St. Patrick's Day. The first Irish immigrants who came to this country arrived in the 18th century from Ulster, Ireland's northernmost province. They were mostly Scotch-Irish Protestants, the descendents of England's plantation policy, a failed attempt to plant Ireland with enough Protestants to convert her from Catholicism.

Irish Catholics were also among these immigrants and both groups were farming people for the most part. These early arrivals generally were well to do and bought land in the southern states where they introduced the word plantation to America. The Scarlett O'Haras and Rhet Butlers of Gone With the Wind were among these people who numbered a few thousand.

The immigration of the 19th century, however, was something entirely different. In the 1840s, Ireland's population suffered massive starvation from the potato famine. England's cruel policy of shipping all of the wheat, cattle and sheep out of Ireland often left her inhabitants dead by the side of the road with grass in their mouths. The Irish were, to England's way of thinking, "alien in blood, speech and religion," and not worthy of normal consideration.

The resulting holocaust brought to these shores a different Irish immigrant, one weak with sickness, poverty and despair. This time they came, not by a few thousand, but by the millions. Needless to say, the arrival of millions of poor, illiterate and, perhaps worst of all, Catholic Irish, was not a situation considered tolerable by the Anglophile WASP establishment of New York, Boston, and Philadelphia.

During the early years newspapers carried NINA, No Irish Need Apply, and Protestants Only, in their jobs columns. The hospitals were full of half-dead Irish who, in their weakened condition from the famine, had barely survived the Atlantic crossing. They were herded together in steerage, in many cases not seeing the sky once during the passage, forced to eat, sleep and relieve themselves in the same area. Many died during the voyage. On some boats, as many orphans arrived as adults. They, quite frankly, were less valuable to ship owners than slaves from Africa. The Irish paid for their passage in advance. If they died en route, there was no lost investment.

Women constituted a large number of the second wave of Irish immigrants. The men who came earlier, encountering the religious hostility, found that it was easier for women to obtain jobs in the houses of the gentry. Often they would lie about their religion to gain employment, an act that created much bitterness in them. The men took menial jobs wherever they could find them; garbage collection, street repairs, canal building, railroad construction. They banded together in shanty towns and the poorer neighborhoods of the big cities called "Little Ireland" or "The Dublin District."

The hostility to their religion was not new. The English had tried to exterminate Catholicism in Ireland for nearly 700 years, with no success. In the face of religious bigotry, the Irish only became more Catholic. Catholic churches were raised everywhere. When they found themselves discriminated against in public schools for their "popish" observances, they began their own schools in the basement of the local parish church. From that beginning came the largest private school system in the world, a nationwide network of Catholic elementary schools, high schools, colleges, and graduate schools.

The schools, like the Catholic church in America, became dominated by the Irish. Later immigrants such as the Germans, Italians, Poles and other southern and eastern European people found a complete Catholic culture in place when they arrived, albeit an Irish-Catholic one. Other ethnic groups still smart from the fact that it wasn't until the late 1950s that the American Church had a cardinal who was not of Irish descent.

The arrival of the Irish in America was coincidental with the arrival of the Industrial Revolution. The large cities of the north required labor, and the previously agrarian Irish turned to the work of the machine with strength and determination. Money was earned for educating the young in the professions. Their numbers swelled and their strength and influence grew.

As those numbers increased, the Irish learned the value of "universal" suffrage. In America, every white male had the right to vote almost upon arrival. In short order the non-Irish politicians were courting their votes and before long the Irish, whose seemingly only advantage was the English language, were running their own candidates. Control of the city political machines meant control of the city's jobs, patronage. Soon whole city police departments, fire departments and other city services were filled with the Irish and their offspring. It wasn't always pretty, and much of what they did for themselves was done at the expense of others, particularly the WASP establishment, but it was a way to climb the social and economic ladder in a raw and hostile environment.

All of these opportunities, none of which ever materialized for the Irish immigrants in England, put the American Irish in the position to amass great fortunes. To this day, Englishmen I know from Cambridge can neither believe, nor accept, the success of the Irish in America.

From publicans and dock workers, from garbage collectors and street laborers came the Kennedys of Boston; the Murray-McDonalds of Wall Street; the Cudahys of Chicago meat packing; Butlers of A&P, Mullhollands and Dohenys of oil; O'Briens, Mackays, Fairs and Floods of Nevada silver; Browns of Denver; "Diamond Jim" Brady and Thomas "Fortune" Ryan; the Mellons and Rooneys of Pittsburgh; McDonnel of McDonnel-Douglas; Sullivan of UPS; Kellys of Philadelphia construction and Princess Grace; Bradys of ConEd; Kellys of Anaconda Steel; W.R. Grace of the steamships; and many more who made their fortunes in real estate, politics, and railroads.

Today, the descendents of this influx of poor, illiterate Irish Catholic immigrants, comprise the largest single group of ethnic Americans, other than those of English descent. They largely are successful, well-educated and contributing members of American society. It is one of the great testimonies to the American dream.

(Editor's Note: Mr. Gallagher of Carmel regularly provides us with explanations of etymology, the history of constitutional terms, and errors in everyday English. For questions or comments, drop him a line at PO Box G-1, Carmel 93921.)

A St. Patrick's Day party benefitting Special Olympics of Monterey County will be held from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m., Friday, March 17 in the Grand Ballroom of the Hyatt Regency Drive, Mark Thomas Drive in Monterey.

Held at the Hyatt for the fifth straight year, the St. Patrick's Day benefit party will offer popular local rock band Lovers and Strangers. In addition to the $5 cover charge donation, party-goers can purchase a wide variety of Irish food, including corned beef sandwiches and cabbage, and not-so-Irish food such as pizza and popcorn. A no-host bar will also be available.

The Monterey County Special Olympics provides sports programs for people with mental retardation of all ages and ability levels.

"Most people don't realize we are a year-round program," said Karen Fulton, executive director of MCSO. "We offer a certified sports training program modelled after the Olympic Games which serves over 350 adults and children."

Since Special Olympics is non-profit it does not receive money from sources other than donations, Fulton said. Hosting parties such as these is one way to raise funds, she added.

Alan Richmond of KWAV 97-FM, a co-sponsor of the event, will be master of ceremonies for the event.

BUY Peninsula FIRST

By Linda G. Horning

Calling all Couch Potatoes

I QUIT smoking some four months ago, and little by little I've gained a few pounds every month, until, voila! One pair of control top pantyhose just doesn't get the job done anymore!

It doesn't help that so many of us have "cerebral" desk jobs and just want to veg out on the couch every evening. So I joined a fitness center, and I figure (no pun intended), that if we all started right now, we could get a lot closer to being fit and trim by summertime.

The variety of fitness facilities and techniques available on the peninsula is amazing:

Andy Pessen of The Fitness Solution (649-4048), makes house calls, a blessing for those of us in such a state of "blimp" we don't want to be seen at a public gym. He evaluates the fitness level of each client and designs a program to help clients meet their individual goals. He has a masters in exercise physiology and does complete dietary analysis, since reaching a fitness goal is impossible without paying attention to one's diet. The initial consultation/fitness evaluation is free of charge. Andy doesn't expect his clients to bicycle from California to New York, though he himself has done so on three separate occasions: he says Carmel to Pacific Grove is good enough!

Sandra Williams owns the Ms. Trim of Carmel at the Crossroads (625-1210), and although it appears to be passive exercise, it is really isometric, so even if you don't lose weight, you will end up losing inches. The purpose of the equipment is to tighten and tone the body, but it also increases circulation, flexibility and stretchability. Some of Sandra's clients have arthritis and can't speak highly enough about how it has restored their ability to function. And even though most women initially go to firm up, it feels so good that most end up thinking that losing inches is secondary — they wouldn't dream of giving up those refreshing sessions! Once Sandra was explaining to an elderly client the benefits of circulation, joint flexing, muscle toning, and strengthening, and this spunky octogenarian said, "Honey, I only care about getting rid of two inches around my waist." What an inspiration, huh?

THE CARMEL Valley Racquet Club and Chamisal Tennis Club and Fitness Center are owned by the same local residents, and offer the same programs and facilities in two different locations, both in beautiful sunbelts that take advantage of rustic surroundings designed to make your work out or recreational break very pleasant.

The Racquet Club is located two miles down Carmel Valley Road, off Rancho San Carlos Road, and the Chamisal Tennis Club and Fitness Center is located on Robley Road off Laureles Grade and Highway 68. These clubs offer tennis, aerobics, swimming and weightroom equipment. Tennis programs cater to everyone from families to singles and senior citizens. In fact, in a recent membership drive, an 82-year-old former champion squash player bought a tennis membership because he wanted a new "sports challenge" in his life. After hearing that, I REALLY feel like a couch potato! Contact Vicky Wolpert at 624-7612 for further information.

These clubs conduct the Carmel Valley Tennis Camp for youths aged 8 to 18 for one, two or three weeks during the summer, offering professional instruction for beginners to tournament players. Keep in mind that it is a "camp" however, so the kids will also have fun making crafts, telling stories around the campfire, playing other sports and having real camping experience. Contact Susan Reeder at 624-7117 for further particulars.

Also for children ages 3 through 18, the Monterey Gymnastics Center (373-1694), is a non-profit organization devoted exclusively to gymnastics.

Hiroshi Fujimoto, with the center for 15 years, believes that if children learn to enjoy sports and fitness at an early age, it carries over into their adult life, and provides them with an opportunity to develop self-esteem and self-confidence. He has seen this reflected in his students' high scholastic achievements, as well. Their boys team recently won the Northern California State Championship. Hiroshi is gratified to see some of his former students' children now enrolled at the Gymnastics Center.

The Monterey Tennis Center (372-0172), on Pearl Street has four lighted courts open to the public for a free, available until 9 p.m. weekdays, 5 p.m. weekends, with reservations taken a week in advance.

The center also offer group and private lessons taught by pros who belong to the U.S. Professional Tennis Association. Every Wednesday night match plays (mixed doubles), are scheduled, and anyone over 16 years of age with $5 can play. Sounds like fun for both the players and the spectators!

The YMCA (373-4167), and Monterey Peninsula College (646-4035), are a few additional organizations offering exercise and fitness programs. Also, different forms of dance such as ballet, jazz and tap, offered by the Monterey Dance Workshop (649-0698), to name one, are excellent ways to exercise.

With all that variety, surely ONE form of exercise will appeal to you. As for me, I will diligently remember "a moment on the lips, a lifetime on the hips," and will hopefully be saying good-bye to thunder-thighs.

(This bi-weekly column is a service of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce "Buy Peninsula First" campaign, a joint project of the Economic Development Committee and the Small Business Committee.)

The station, located in Pacific Grove, provides a variety of music and public affairs programming to communities around the Monterey Bay. All programmers — "disk jockeys" in commercial radio — are volunteers who bring their expertise, selections from their own record collections and unique personalities to their shows.

More than 600 listeners are expected to begin or renew their subscriptions during the drive, according to Paulette Lynch, development director. Pledge drives are the most significant fund-raisers for community radio stations, she said. The goal of the Spring '89 drive is $40,000.

Premiums — or "thank-you gifts" — this year include everything from Towne & Country Dinner Club memberships, dinners and lunches and gift certificates and merchandise from area businesses. A basic subscription to the station is $35, but the "12-by-12 Club" is also popular: $12 a month for 12 months.

His graduate studies leading to a doctorate at Harvard University included work on both East Asian Studies and Government. In addition to his book, China and Africa, 1949-1970: The Foreign Policy of the People's Republic of China, he edited The Soviet Issue in US Central American Policy, published last year.

During his 24-year tenure at UC Santa Cruz, he has been deeply involved in the Institute on Global Conflict and Cooperation and the institute's Seminar on Arms Control and Global Security.

In May of last year, he went to Beijing for discussions with Chinese specialists on arms control. The following month, in San Diego, he was a leading participant in the first discussions among Soviet, Chinese and US students of arms control, a group drawn from universities and research institutes in all three countries.

Also last year, Larkin traveled to Venice, Italy for an international seminar on disarmament and arms control at which he delivered a paper on the political implications of global warming.

Currently, he is writing a book on the causes of war.

What do you know about Christian Science? Have you wanted to know more about Christian Science?

The members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel invite you to a free public lecture on Christian Science, March 18, at Sunset Center at 11 a.m.

It is entitled "What It Is and What It Isn't: An Informative Lecture on Christian Science."

There will also be an opportunity to ask questions following the lecture.

Seniors program needs participants

Carmel Police Department's "Seniors Helping Seniors" program has need for two types of seniors: those who would like to help and those who desire help.

According to Cathy Dampier, desk officer, there are seniors who are looking for some type of community involvement to donate their time and others who are lonely, "shut-ins," or are "at-risk" due to medical or physical reasons and desire contact with someone who cares about their welfare.

Under the program, senior volunteers call participants of the program by telephone from the Carmel Police Department. If for some reason the recipient doesn't answer the phone, the volunteer alerts the police dispatcher and a patrol unit is sent to check on the participant's welfare. To be effective, calls are made at about the same time every day, Dampier said, but the seniors aren't restricted to their homes. If they plan to be gone, they merely notify the police department in advance.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer or a recipient of the "Seniors Helping Seniors" program is encouraged to call the Carmel Police Department at 624-6403.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Father Farrell marks St. Patrick's Day

Carmel Pine Cone
Mar. 22, 1979

Bless us all, Celt and Sassenachs, as Thou didst bless the royal Hibernians in the days of St. Patrick of St. Kevin of Glendalough, St. Bride and Brendan of Birr and Brian Boru.

There are hundreds of poetic blessings of sea and sky and dew—of welcoming hearthstones, turf fires, thatch roofs and purple heather—but here is a standard blessing you have all heard before and for which I make no apology.

May the road rise to meet thee; may the wind be always at thy back; may the sun shine warm upon thy face, the sweet rain fall soft upon thy fields; may the Lord hold thee in the palm of his hand. May ye be in heaven an hour before the devil knows yer dead. And Dr. Gerry adds: "May ye always be in the men's room when the waiter brings the check."

Red Cross collects new yarn

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Chapter of the American Red Cross is now taking donations of yarns to be used for sweaters, afghans, lap robes and other items crafted by Red Cross volunteers. These items will then be sent to patients at veterans' hospitals.

To donate, contact the Red Cross at Eighth Avenue and Dolores Street, Carmel, or call 624-6921.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

How the picture has changed since the 1983 crisis in Social Security funding! Congressional action in that year put the funding on a sound basis and separated Social Security trust funds from the rest of the Federal budget. As a result, reserves are building up to assure payment of benefits to future retirees. Morever, annual cost-of-living increases to current retirees are paid from the trust funds, and do not increase the Federal budget. In an unrelated move, the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law of 1985 requires that surpluses in Social Security funds be counted each year in calculating the Federal deficit. The effect is to make the deficit seem smaller than it actually is — about $37 billion smaller in fiscal 1988.

Elderly people should consider one good lock for the front door instead of several less effective locks, the National Institute on Aging advises. A single lock that is easy to open from inside increases chances for survival in event of fire or other emergency. Having to manipulate several locks when seconds count could be too great a challenge.

$199,279 from the event. This money supports heart research and education with a percentage going to the American and California Associations for Health Physical Education Recreation and Dance.

Diane Chatwin, a school improvement program teacher at Carmel River School and event chairman, describes Jump Rope For Heart at her school as a "very positive experience." Besides the exercise, she emphasizes ways to make healthy hearts in areas that can be changed such as nutrition, stress, and smoking. "Last year three children felt they had helped their parents stop smoking through the jump rope program," she said.

Schools may still register for the event by phoning the American Heart Association, Central Mission Trails Chapter, at 372-0485, 757-6221 or 688-7272.

THE HOMEMAKER REGISTRY SEEKING APPLICANTS

Elderly and disabled individuals usually wish to remain at home despite the difficulties of independent living. Home has a familiarity and comfort that helps to keep people alert and actively involved in life.

However, for the hundreds of elderly and disabled of Monterey County, continuing to live safely at home is only possible if they receive assistance with housekeeping, personal care and transportation to doctors' offices and shopping areas.

The Homemaker Registry is a service that recruits individuals to work in the homes of the elderly and disabled. If you are someone who is looking for meaningful work and enjoys the company of older people, this may be the right job for you.

The work is primarily part time and the pay is $4.25 an hour. For more information or to arrange for an interview, call the Homemaker Registry; in Salinas call 757-5905 and on the Monterey Peninsula call 372-7662.

CANDIDATES LINE UP FOR CALIFORNIA SENIOR LEGISLATURE

The filing period has closed for the California Senior Legislature (CSL). The Assembly seat held by John McCune has no opposition; the Senate seat held by Nora Loe has been challenged by Francette Bell, Margaret Osborne, and Jaime Zamora.

Senior Assemblyman McCune said: "Being unopposed in this election signifies a vote of confidence; I will do my utmost to continue serving Monterey County's seniors. I will continue my efforts for the funding of senior center throughout the state."

The California Senior Legislature meets each October in Sacramento as representatives of California's 60-plus population. Often called the "Silver Haired Legislature," legislation is proposed in a process very similar to the regular legislature. Many of the top 10 proposals frequently become state law after they have gone through the regular legislative process.

The election will be held Tuesday, March 21 in 12 senior nutrition sites throughout Monterey County. Any registered voter who is at least 60 years old is eligible to vote. The election will be conducted by the League of Women Voters.

R. Lynn Davis has been appointed Executive Director of Legal Services for Seniors, a Monterey County non-profit agency providing advice, education and representation to needy area elders.

Davis is a graduate of San Jose State University and the Monterey College of Law. He is the former vice president of Forest Hill Store, Inc. of Pacific Grove.

Davis served as a volunteer and staff member at Legal Services for Seniors from 1985-1987. In July, 1988 he was hired as program director for the agency. He will continue to work actively as a staff attorney for the program, in addition to assuming the responsibilities of executive director.

Davis has been active in a wide variety of community organizations including Kiwanis, Monterey County Boy Scouts and the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce. As executive director, he replaces Marian Penn, the founder of Legal Services for Seniors. Penn will remain on staff as Director of Development and Outreach.

Legal Services for seniors was founded in 1985 and provides free legal services to economically and socially needy Monterey County residents, 60 years of age or older. The agency runs two offices, one in Salinas and one in Monterey, and will serve over 1,600 local seniors this year. Legal Services for Seniors concentrates its work on resolving income, housing, medical care coverage and abuse problems affecting elderly persons. The agency is supported by governmental grants, private donors and the Salinas Valley United Way.

WILLIAM GILES, photographer, demonstrates "Shadow Graphing" with this image made at his studio in Carmel Valley. His slide/talk presentation titled "The Shadow and the Camera" sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung will be presented at 7 p.m. on Friday, March 17, at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel. For program details, call 649-8809.

Photographer explores the realm of psychic shadows

A SLIDE/TALK presentation by photographer Wiliam Giles will relate C.G. Jung's concept of the psychic shadow with the reality of visual shadows. The program begins at 7 p.m. on Friday, March 17 at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

Giles, whose studio and home is in Carmel Valley, traces man's visual evolution, starting with the first cave markings, through the use of pigments, then to silver in photography, and now to the tape systems of our electronic age.

His focus: "Light is an essence with powers which resonate far beyond the physical matter it illuminates. It thus embraces what is irrational, fathomless and mystical."

Participants will be enabled to relate their individual psychic shadow contents to the reality of the shadow content in photography through experiential exercises that are part of the evening's activity.

The public is invited to this and all other activities of the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung, which is sponsoring this "adventure in visual shadows that are part of the camera's vocabulary."

There is no formal membership in the Friends of C.G. Jung, which is a collection of people who are sharing an enthusiasm for translating the seminal ideas of the famous Swiss psychologist into practical applications in their everyday lives.

Prior registration is suggested but not required, as is a modest donation. For further information, call 649-8809, or write 853 Pacific St., Monterey.

52nd Bach Festival offers diverse programming, events

DEADLINE for purchase of season tickets to the 52nd Carmel Bach Festival is Friday, March 31.

The three-week festival embraces concerts, dinners, recitals, lectures, and workshops. The musical highlights of this year's program are many. Maestro Sandor Salgo, in his 34th year as music director and conductor of the festival, has assembled a program that includes J.S. Bach's Mass in B minor, Cantatas 21, 33 and 34 and the Violin Concerto in E. The festival is set July 17 to Aug. 6.

Albert Takazauckas will return to Carmel to serve as stage director of the festival opera, which will be The Abduction from the Seraglio by Mozart. Mark Volkert returns as concertmaster and the Virginia Best Adams Master Class Teacher will be D'Anna Fortunato.

Maestro Salgo's program for the Wednesday night concerts at the Carmel Mission Basilica will comprise a "Homage to 17th Century France."

The 1989 program further includes Mozart's Solemn Vespers, Concert Aria and Piano Concerto in D.

Both returning soloists and artists new to the Carmel Bach Festival can be heard this summer. Performers include Janina Fialkowska, piano; Mark Volkert and Christiane Edinger, violins; Angel Romero, guitar; Beverly Hoch and Susan Patterson, soprano; D'Anna Fortunato, mezzo-soprano; Stephen Tharp, William Watson, tenor; Myron Myers and Will Parker, bass; and Catherine Turocy of the New York Baroque Dance Company.

Several pieces by Brahms will be performed in the E. Nakamichi Foundation Recital Series. Maestro Salgo will feature several of Brahms' works, in which the composer's use of polyphony reflects the influence of Bach. Brahms, along with Mendelssohn, was among the founders of the 19th century Bach Society formed to rekindle interest in the relatively neglected Baroque composer.

New this season will be a Thursday morning lecture program designed to round out an understanding of the Baroque era. The Gentrain program of Monterey Peninsula College

Art auction will benefit Beacon House

BEACON HOUSE celebrates its 30th art auction this year, with more than 70 artists contributing works to raise funds for the organization's substance abuse recovery program. The auction takes place Saturday, March 18, at the Rancho Canada Golf and Country Club in Carmel Valley.

CARMEL ARTIST Mary Titus discusses her watercolor with art specialist James Howard as they both get ready for the Beacon House Art Auction, held Saturday, March 18, at the Rancho Canada Golf and Country Club. (Photograph by Alan McEwen.)

The Beacon House Art Auction is the largest on the Central Coast, and has become a leading event for serious art collectors and investors. This year, new artists, many of international renown, will join ranks with past art auction supporters in contributing oils, etchings, watercolors, gouaches, charcoals, pastels, prints and sculpture.

Gus Arriola, Edna Bullock, Wah Chang, Carol Chapman, Bill Cook, George DeGroat, Miguel Dominguez, Elmer Ekeroth, Michael Light, Emile Norman, Peggy Olson, Alice Jean Small, Eve Tartar, Philip Thorngate, Joe Thomas and Mary Titus are among the painters, photographers, lithographers, watercolorists, sculptors, cartoonists and designers lending their talents.

Some works include a woodblock print by Gordon Mortensen of Pebble Beach; a watercolor by children's book illustrator Shirley Holt; a sculpture by Eleen Auvil, whose work last year commanded the top auction dollar; and an acrylic by Harold Mason of Carmel.

The evening will begin with a silent auction at 5 p.m. featuring contributions from local businesses—dinners, clothing, arts and antiques. A raffle is also planned. Dinner is at 7, and the art auction begins at 8.

This year, the auction is co-chaired by interior designer Betsy Brown and businessman and art connoisseur James Howard. Diane Bower, an instructor of interior design at Monterey Peninsula College, is head of the art committee. Wielding the auction gavel is veteran auctioneer Roy Gianolini of Greenfield.

Celebratory concerts fill weekend roster

TWO CELEBRATORY concerts took up last weekend: one for the winners of the piano competition, one for Morton Gould's 75th birthday.

Ready or not, it is competition time again. This is not the time to debate the pros and cons of such; they are a fact of life. Saturday night was the winner's recital of the competition sponsored by the Carmel Music Society. The winners were, in inverse order: Paul Romero, Hsing-Chwen Hsin and Bryan Verhoye.

Since contestants tend to play what judges want to hear — or what they think judges want to hear — there is an obligatory Baroque number, followed by several fast, loud numbers. Saturday's concert was no exception.

A Prelude and a couple of dances from Bach's D minor English Suite (two pianists involved) and a Scarlatti sonata were the opening numbers, all of them highly Romantic in styling — long, Brahmsian lines, limpid rhythms (I would defy anyone to have identified the dances in question on the basis of rhythm), discreet pedalling, not one note added in embellishment, large crescendos and decrescendos.

After that, it was truly the battle of the young virtuosi, with notes by Liszt, Schumann, Chopin, Debussy filling the air with impressive accuracy and awesome speed. The welcome surprise of the evening was the Sonata No. 1 by the Argentine Alberto Ginastera. Romero played the first movement; Verhoye played the whole work. It is a showy vehicle with the advantage of unfamiliarity. Ginastera is an original composer, capable of poetic and suave writing. There was some of that here, particularly in the third movement, but the emphasis is on flamboyance.

Ms. Hsin chose the first movement of the Schumann C major Fantasy, and did a good, slightly cool, reading of it. She also essayed L'isle joyeuse of Debussy, and Masks by the contemporary American, Robert Muczynski, another flashy piece. One had a sneaking sense that she wanted to prove that such a diminutive body could play just as many notes per second as her larger colleagues. She did.

It was a pleasure to hear the work by Muczynski, a composer whose piano pieces deserve to be better known. A welcome change of place also was Verhoye's inclusion of Chopin's Nocturne, Op. 9, No. 1, offering an introverted moment.

As always, one is impressed with the technical achievement of these young pianists. We are witnessing the same sort of thing we see in the Olympics every four years — what once seemed virtually unattainable is now part of each participant's arsenal. However, technical achievement is but one aspect of artistry. A gymnast is not a ballerina.

•

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Symphony engaged Morton Gould as composer/conductor for the most recent series which opened at King Hall in Monterey on Sunday, March 12.

WINNERS OF THE Carmel Music Society competition for young pianists are, from left, Bryan Verhoye of San Diego, Hsing Chwen-Hsin of Taiwan and Paul Romero of West Covina. Eight finalists performed Saturday, March 11 at Sunset Theater in Carmel. The winners' concert took place that evening. (Photograph by Chuck Scardina).

With Gould conducting, the program opened with his Spirituals for Orchestra, written in 1941. In five movements, the work draws on popular music, jazz, what was then known as Negro music, even some classical techniques as it meanders along its circuitous route. The third movement, "A Little Bit of Sin," sounded like a fantasy on "Mammy's Little Baby Loves Short'nin' Bread." "Protest" featured a lot of close, dissonant sounds that didn't add up to much. The last movement, "Jubilee," actually had a boogie bass and a lot of irritating repetition.

The work also utilized string tremolo and cute effects from the percussion department.

Flutists are grateful for concertos, as there are not copious numbers of them. Mr. Gould's Concerto for Flute and Orchestra, was premiered in either 1984 or 1985 (depending on which page of the program notes one reads) by Donald Peck, the performer for these concerts. The work exploited the instrument's capabilities, and Peck certainly played with aplomb. The piece itself ... well, the compositional style and form can best be described as arbitrary. Perhaps it will find its way into the repertoire, but I wouldn't bet on it.

Intonation in the strings, especially violins, was arresting.

After intermission, Clark Suttle returned to his accustomed position on the podium and led the orchestra through a dynamic Tchaikovsky Fifth Symphony. There were only minor problems here — some muddy inner parts, some awkward tempo transitions. In general it was tightly conceived and warmly presented with some beautiful playing from the woodwinds and French horn. Tchaikovsky's lovely melodies unfold, one after another, with reckless abandon and it was a pleasure to get lost in them.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joanne Tenenbaum

'Compound Interest' — a curious mixture

CARMEL'S CHERRY Hall was host last weekend to a presentation of local playwright Jean Ackermann's Compound Interest, which, though billed as "a comedy with songs," emerged instead as a curious mixture: one-third parody on 19th century melodrama, one-third musical comedy, and two-thirds humorless didacticism. (You got it; it doesn't add up.)

Directed by Gina Welch-Hagen, Compound Interest whisks us back to 1880 to observe a day in the life of Lydia Pinkham, a sixtyish entrepreneur who made a fortune selling a dark brown, indifferent tasting herbal tonic to women all over the world. ("Remember," Pinkham is fond of pointing out, "in every bottle there's a baby." Geez.)

I'll bet it was the ghost of Pinkham who gave Pepperidge Farm the idea for a machine that mass-produces cookies that look convincingly homemade. "The public likes the homey touch," she says, explaining how it is that she appears, apron-clad, stirring a little kettle in a Victorian parlor rather than receiving the public down the street in the factory in which her tonic is produced in staggering quantities.

Playwright Ackermann has plainly fallen in love with her subject, seeing in Pinkham an unsung champion of women's rights and an early feminist. Maybe she was, but Ackermann's script proves more convincingly that she was a pre-Madison Avenue marketing prodigy who had broken the code of volume selling and direct mail advertising and astutely capitalized on the public's hunger for the homey touch.

The production generally follows the style of 19th century melodrama, with one-dimensional villains broadly playing out their farcical roles amid frequent songs.

It falls to Jim Jensen and James P. Kinney to strut and fret their hour upon the stage as, respectively, a narrow-minded doctor and a bible-thumping preacher, both of whom think Lydia ought to be "tied to the nearest tree."

Predictably enough, Pinkham dogears the cardboard characters of these caricatures, countering their every ridiculous accusation with an equally pompous claim. ("I'm the secret ingredient," Pinkham proclaims, and she doesn't even smile when she says it.)

Jensen manages to have fun with his role, particularly in the business which accompanies his sampling of Pinkham's notorious brew. Kinney simply seems too big and loud for Cherry Hall's small stage.

Throughout Compound Interest, women approach Pinkham (who is played with regal grandeur by Janice O'Brien) like bewildered handmaidens sidling up to the Oracle of Delphi. Pinkham responds with a humorless self-righteousness that makes her character an unappealing bore, despite the common sense advice she sometimes dishes up.

Welch-Hagen's direction is spotty; her attempt to extend the space of Cherry Hall's small stage by standing the singers in the aisles, on either side of the audience, did not work for me. Except for some diction problems, the chorus of three women (Nancy Williams, Valerie Barnes, and Connie Erickson) handled the musical end of the production well enough. But the music itself is undistinguished in the main, and this story seems to me essentially unmusical.

Compound Interest's mixture of 19th century melodrama and musical comedy plus the playwright's frank adoration of Pinkham do not add up to a viable entertainment, not even a frivolous one. Ackermann's Pinkham is a cardboard character herself, mouthing platitudes about fresh air, exercise and the evils of the medical profession. Besides, if we're going to make jackasses of the medical profession and the clergy, for heaven's sake let our heroine have a little mud in her veins, too. But no.

Pinkham's entrance was one of the funniest I have ever seen, but the humor was apparently unintentional: We first see her posing for a photograph, holding up a huge mockup of a bottle of her product with an oval cutout through which her face is visible. She looks, in a word, ridiculous. "Smile," says the photographer.

"I am a national institution," Pinkham intones, "I do not smile."

I'll bet the Statue of Liberty wishes she'd thought of that first.

Host families needed for exchange students

Host families are being sought for high school exchange students from Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Holland, Austria, Switzerland, Germany, Spain, France, Italy, Brazil, Ecuador, New Zealand, Australia and Japan in a program sponsored by the American Intercultural Student Exchange (AISE).

The students, age 15 through 17, will arrive in the United States in August, attend a local high school, and return to their home countries in July, 1990. The students, all fluent in English, have been screened by their school representatives in their home countries and have spending money and medical insurance.

Host families may deduct $50 per month for income tax purposes.

AISE is also seeking American high school students, age 15 through 17, who would like to spend a high school year in Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland, France, Spain, New Zealand or Australia or participate in a five week summer host family stay throughout Western Europe, including Ireland.

Families interested in either program should contact the state coordinator or call toll free: 1-800-SIBLING.

Furniture, clothing needed

The Salvation Army Adult Rehabilitation Center is in need of usable clothing and furniture. Due to unusually cold temperatures, the demand for heavy winter clothing is much greater than normal. Also in short supply is usable furniture, including bedroom sets, dining room furniture, as well as infants' and children's furnishings.

Donors may contact the Salvation Army pick up service in Monterey County by calling the toll-free number, (800) 336-4900. Offers to the Salvation Army are still tax deductible, and receipts are available to donors for tax purposes.

Give extra bags to Goodwill

Goodwill Industries is putting out a call for paper and plastic bags for use in their stores in Monterey and Santa Cruz counties. Grocery bags will be received at Goodwill stores and Attended Donation Stations throughout the area.

A Cry of Players

Step back in time to an autumn in the 1580s, to an obscure town in England, sprinkled with the raucous, unkempt and, at times, brutish characters so prevalent during the Elizabethan era. This period, a time when the fork had not yet found its way to table, is the setting for a tale about William Shakespeare's early life.

William Gibson wrote A Cry of Players, which focuses on Shakespeare's days before he went off to London with a travelling group of thespians. He calls it "a bawdy play, in the grand style — not for the timid."

A Cry of Players will be presented by The Western Stage. Opening performances are set at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 18 and 2 p.m. Sunday, March 19. The play continues at 8 p.m. March 23-25, 30-31 and April 1.

Admission is $10 to Friday and Saturday shows, and $8.50 on Sunday. Season subscribers pay half-price.

The Western Stage is housed in Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave. (off West Alisal Street), Salinas. For further information or reservations, call 375-2111 or 758-1221.

Right You Are (If You Think You Are)

Luigi Pirandello's sly look at gossip in a small Italian town, Right You Are (If You Think You Are) explores what a rising tide of inquisitiveness does to the objects of the town's nosiness. The play is brought to life by The Staff Players Repertory Company at the Indoor Forest Theater in Carmel.

Pirandello was years ahead of his contemporaries in his understanding of the observer's point of view. The notion of Total Objectivity seemed a myth to him. Right You Are... carries the audience with the actors into a close look at how much we really know about one another.

A cast of officials, relatives, wives, neighbors and onlookers includes Norman Stottmeister, Mitchell Davis, Nancy Kocher, Mark Heckman, Suzanne Crain, Victoria Johnson, Mary Schmidt, Ivan Flansburg, Ray Wiberg, Jennifer Wilcox, Pamela Murphy, Brian Huntington, Christina Perez and Rachel McDonald.

New Testament

JOSEPH (Jim Sutty), Misty the Camel and Mary (Dorian Ellis), reenact the first Christmas in Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All for You. Christopher Durang's satire continues at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center in New Monterey.

Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All for You

Christopher Durang's satire of organized religion, Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All for You, makes its Central Coast debut at the GroveMont Theater.

Mindy Stock portrays Sister Mary, a slightly "round-the-bend" nun who delivers charmingly ghoulish lectures on Catholicism to her parochial school students. Devised as no mere diatribe against the church, Sister Mary is instead a character who conveys the insidious ways any large organization spreads its dogmatic views. Durang has produced a play which some view as hilarious, multi-layered and disturbing.

The production is directed by Stephen Moorer and also features Dorian Ellis, Mickie Mosley Braun, Kevin Hanstick, Jim Sutty and Luke Stock.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays until April 2.

Ticket prices are Thursdays and Sundays are $8.50 general and $7 for students, senior citizens and the military. Tickets on Fridays and Saturdays are $9.50 general and $8 for students, seniors and the military.

The theater is at 320 Hoffman, between Lighthouse and Hawthorne, in New Monterey. For advance tickets, call 649-5561. For reservations, call 649-6852.

My Fair Sheriff

The Carmel Foundation's annual Revue and Ice Cream Social this year reflects an Old West theme. Senior members of the foundation will perform songs, dance and "unprecedented forms of entertainment," according to the press release.

Directed by Carmel Foundation members Iris and Hal Harris, My Fair Sheriff is a rollicking Country-Western musical, featuring such songs as "The Tennessee Waltz," "Tumbling Tumbleweeds," "Cool Water" and many others. These songs are united by a plot that includes a villain (Hector DeSmet), a stalwart sheriff (Camille Templeton), and a saloon keeper (Roy Cole) who is finagled into transforming his premises into a church meeting house.

Final performances of My Fair Sheriff are set at 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, March 18-19. Ice cream with homemade topping will be served family-style at 2 p.m. The show commences shortly thereafter in the Carmel Foundation, located at Lincoln and Eighth in Carmel. Tickets for both ice cream and the show are $4.

Friends of Photography announce new workshop series

A DIVERSE series of photography workshops marks the 14th season that The Friends of Photography has offered intensive, short-term educational programs focusing on the art of photography.

Five workshops, covering topics that range from contemporary approaches to the nude and trends in the 1980s to the traditions of Ansel Adams, each will be led by four to five artists, critics and/or curators. Among this year's faculty are Ruth Bernhard, Bruce Davidson, Andy Grundberg, Michael Kenna, Patrick Nagatani, Fred Ritchin, Jean-Marie Simon, Joyce Tenneson and Andree Tracey.

The Friends of Photography's program is unique because the workshops concentrate on aesthetics and the art of seeing while also exploring a variety of historical, technical and critical concerns essential to a full understanding of photography.

Participants find that the concentrated learning experience and the opportunity to work with photographers of renown provide them with the practical knowledge and artistic inspiration necessary to be active, productive artists.

Workshops vary from two to six days in length. During the day, participants gather in small groups to meet with each faculty member. In the evenings, the entire group assembles to hear faculty slide lectures and to view the work of other participants. These primary activities are supplemented by individual critiques, special lectures, demonstrations, optional early morning field sessions and late night discussions.

The 1989 workshops will be held at two locations in the San Francisco and Monterey Bay areas. These locations are easily accessible but secluded enough to allow full immersion in the workshops. Shared and private rooms as well as three meals a day are available.

The 1989 workshop program is sponsored by the Professional Photography Division of Eastman Kodak Company. Support is also received from the California Arts Council, Olympus Corporation, individual donors and members of The Friends of Photography.

For more information, write or call for an illustrated brochure, Workshops, The Friends of Photography, 101 The Embarcadero, Suite 210-PR, San Francisco, CA 94105, (415) 391-7500.

Group bird show opens

PAM WARD'S Sheltered Encounter is included in the group show of bird-themed artwork presented at Gallery Americana in Carmel. A reception is set 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, March 18. Featured artists include Ralph Waterhouse, Lewis Jones, Shirley Howe, Jerry Thrasher and Yvonne Crom. For details, call 624-5071.

Cunningham art exhibit continues

An exhibition featuring the paintings of self-taught artist Earl Cunningham will be on display in the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art's Asian Gallery through May 14.

Drawn from the extensive collection of Michael and Marilyn Mennello of Winter Park, Florida, this is an exhibition of the works of a 20th century American naive artist who is a major contributor to America's artistic heritage.

Cunningham (1893-1977) was a detail-oriented, self-trained artist who worked from memory or imagination rather than from photographs or the real world. He possessed dreams which never materialized, yet painted them with innovation. His works incorporated old-time schooners, Viking ships and portrayals of Seminole Indian life.

Robert Bishop, director of the Museum of American Folk Art, has said, "Earl Cunningham is much respected for his remarkable painterly style and his unique palette. Few American naives possess the ability to create mood with such an economy of detail."

The museum is at 559 Pacific St. in Monterey. Admission is free.

Local wines celebrated at Monterey Plaza

The 1989 Monterey Plaza Hotel Festival of Wines will commence Saturday, April 8, at 7 p.m. in the private Portofino dining room.

Monterey Plaza, a three-year-old bayfront resort-hotel on Cannery Row, has been the forerunner of this "meet the winery" dining experience where restaurants and wineries collaborate to plan a specially matched menu of food and wine. The evening enables the guests an opportunity to be led in an informal tasting and engage in dialogue with the featured-winery representative.

The plaza's festival was founded in 1987 by Food and Beverage Director, Steve Pagano.

The festival dinners will continue through July; once a month, with a different winery featured at each. The dates are set for April 8, May 13, June 3 and July 1. The cost per person is $65 and includes tax and gratuity.

For additional information and reservations, call 646-1700.

Health issues are focus of women's festival

THE SUBJECT of women's health will be explored from myriad points of view ranging from those of American Indian shamans to modern medical practitioners at a day-long program, "Taking Charge of Our Health," at the 1989 Monterey County Women's Fair. The fair is set Saturday, March 18, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas.

Vera Haywood, pastor of the Monterey Church of Religious Science,is one of more than a dozen panelists representing a broad gamut of medical, psychological and spiritual disciplines who will participate in the event, which celebrates National Women's History Month.

"There is a current trend to combine scientific, mental and spiritual approaches in dealing with health issues," Dr. Haywood states. She will discuss how the body responds to mental attitudes and how the American Indian shamans and biblical scriptures approached health and illness. A Religious Science minister since 1978, Dr. Haywood was for many years a medical research chemist, who was invovled with the study of sickle cell anemia.

Following registration and introduction, the fair will open with a keynote address by Bettina Aptheker, Ph.D., assistant professor at the Women's Studies Program, University of California at Santa Cruz, "Now That I Am So Liberated, Why Am I So Tired?"

The opening session will deal with health issues of young women, including psychology, sexuality and childbirth. The second panel will cover health issues of mature women, including menopause, exercise, nutrition, psychology, and sexuality.

Following a lunch break, the third session will focus on topics of special interest to Latin women.

Participants in the final session include Laura Stampelman, M.D., speaking on cancer treatment and prevention; Jane Tonkin, M.D., on general health issues; Pat McDermott, MFCC, stress and depression; and Dr. Haywood on spiritual aspects of health and illness.

The fair, which was designed to include a broad range of subjects of interest to women of all ages, and ethnic backgrounds, is cosponsored by the Hartnell College Office of Community Education, the Monterey County Commission on the Status of Women and other community organizations.

Contact the Office of Community Education, Hartnell College, 755-6800, for further information regarding registration and fee.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Some special comfort

HITLER'S TROOPS took the towns. Jackboots on pavement. With that sound alive in his memory, where could this child find some special comfort?

The Norwegian boy began absorbing Stan Kenton and Woody Herman charts that came over United States Armed Forces Radio. Today, in Manhattan, he's a top-rung corporate officer who peppers his speech with jazz expressions. Of his pal James Moody: "What a smokin' player!" Because Andrew Whist cares about the music, pianist Gene Harris will front a Superband whose 1989 world tour—from Poland to Paris and Moscow as well as Turkey, East Germany, The Ivory Coast—will cost company coffers between $1.5 million and $2 million.

Word on the 45-concert adventure trickled out when Harris played that recent gig with Ray Brown at Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz. Probably the first to hear was Gene's old friend Bill Jackson, drummer, chief bailiff at Monterey County Courthouse, Monterey Jazz Festival board member. Once the proper New York sources had been pinpointed, details flowed easily over the long distance wire.

Andrew's senior vice-president for corporate affairs at Philip Morris International. He's also president of Philip Morris Jazz Grants, which has been sponsoring annual global jaunts by American musicians since 1985. These facts came from Bobby Kaplan, project manager on the Harris Superband Tour.

"We usually work with small groups," Bobby said, "but feel that big bands are experiencing an upswing. Gene Harris has been with us before—he's great. We mean to help keep jazz alive and well by introducing it to people who might not know about it."

Bobby said the whole thing starts Sept. 17 ("when the band opens rehearsals in New York") with touring extended till Dec. 23. Places on the official list: Poland, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Egypt, Turkey, Russia (Moscow a main event), Switzerland, Italy, Germany (West and East), Belgium, Senegal, Ivory Coast, Paris, Holland, Japan, Korea, Taiwan, The Philippines, Australia.

"Our local affiliates will work with the various governments to set up concerts within each country," Bobby said. "We'll support costs of the 18-member band and backup crew—travel, salaries, top accommodations, ample rest stops. These are artists and we'll take good care of them."

The band roster's rather amazing: Gene Harris, Ray Brown, Sweets Edison, Jon Faddis, drummer Jeff Hamilton, Frank Wess, Herb Ellis, James Moody, tenormen Ralph Moore and Gary Smulyan, Ernie Andrews on vocals, Urbie Green, Australian trombonist James Morrison, Charlie Loper, Paul Faulise (bass bone), Jerry Dodgion, Earl Gardner, fine trumpet Johnny Coles out of the older Basie Band.

"Along the way," Bobby added, "ticket prices will be truly nominal so that everyone can attend. The thinking was that concerts would be valued more if some sort of low fee were attached. You really should chat with Andrew Whist—he enjoys talking about this stuff."

Asked about total expense, the 55-year-old Whist was courteous and direct: "When all the projections have been done, this tour probably will cost us anywhere from a million and a half to two million dollars." It was when we spoke of the music itself that frankly youthful excitement entered his voice.

"Isn't it a wonderful band?" he chuckled. "Jazz never has received the support it merits. I happen to love it. We present jazz in a dignified fashion—the best concert halls and sound systems, all the care required for these special people to perform."

Had he ever played? "Oh, yes. As a young man in Norway, I was a professional jazz pianist and drummer. Later I had a jazz club there."

And: "First I was knocked out by Stan Kenton and Woody Herman, courtesy of Armed Forces Radio. Then I fell in love with bebop—Bird, Dizzy, Max Roach, Bud Powell. These world tours have played to some 200,000 people per year. Actually, there's a long record of company support for the art form—in the early '70s we sponsored the first Basie tour of Asia and Australia."

IT JUST KEEPS getting better.

Via last week's column, Youth Music Monterey announced that its 1989 Jazz Camp for youthful seekers will open July 24 and run through August 5 at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

Camp Music Director Don Schamber revealed that pros like Rob McConnell, Bruce Forman, Jay Daversa and Dave Eschelman will teach during the summer session.

Now Don adds that a superb player who came up in this area—bassist Ray Drummond—will serve as a one-day clinician on July 27 and perform at a free public concert. Ray's schedule includes European and Manhattan gigs as well as recording sessions with Art Farmer, Bobby Hutcherson, Tom Harrell, on and on.

Additionally, Don says, famed jazz educator Rich Matteson will offer a workshop for teachers (7/24-28). Credits will be available due to an agreement with San Jose State University.

Schamber: "All faculty people will be involved in nightly no-cost performances at Keck Auditorium on campus. They'll also be playing with student configurations during the day."

Anyone wishing more information may call Youth Music Monterey at 625-1955.

Master games players assemble Saturday at Mission Ranch

PAINTED LEAD soldiers and games from the realm of fantasy will be among those featured at Carmel's first Game Day, arriving Sunday, March 19 at the Mission Ranch Barn. The event is sponsored by Game Gallery and local game clubs, and will take place 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Featured games will include Dungeons and Dragons, Warhammer 40K, Champions, BattleTech, Blood Bowl, WRG Ancient and Johnny Reb Civil War miniatures games, as well as a number of others.

Painted lead "soldiers" are used for both the historical miniatures games like "Johnny Reb" and WRG "Ancients" and for futuristic wargames (such as Warhammer 40K) in order to re-create a battlefield in miniature on a tabletop. They generally feature large masses of troops.

On the other hand, role-playing games (such as Dungeons and Dragons and Champions) are concerned primarily with individual characters. Each player plays one character and, in cooperation with the others, attempts to successfully complete the group's mission.

Game Day will also feature several prizes and surprises. Food and soft drinks will be available; and the public is invited to attend free of charge to either watch or play. It's all just for fun, but contact the Game Gallery at 625-4263 if you are interested in participating as a Game Master.

WHEREAS, a traditional value of Carmel-by-the-Sea is the lack of street lights and nighttime illumination in the residential districts; and

WHEREAS, low level illumination and evening darkness contribute to the residential character of the community; and

WHEREAS, Objective 02-5 of the General Plan states, "Preserve and enhance the qualities that contribute to the residential character of the community, including quiet neighborhoods, low levels of illumination, lack of nighttime activity, safe environment, pedestrian use of streets, and maintenance of property values by mitigating the adverse impacts of high volume through-traffic."; and

WHEREAS, recently the City has witnessed a dramatic increase in the number and brilliance of lights on private property in the residential district; and

WHEREAS, some lighting is needed for safety and security reasons, but if the amount and brightness of lighting are uncontrolled, a traditional value of the community will be significantly compromised; and

WHEREAS, lighting in the commercial land use districts is currently addressed through the design review process but there are no standards for the residential district;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section One: The following section is added to the R-1 Land Use District regulations in the Municipal Code.

17.24.245 Exterior Lighting: The following standards shall apply to the installation of all permanent, exterior lighting and lighting fixtures:

A. All exterior lighting except as noted in Paragraph B of this Section shall be limited to 25 watts or less per fixture.

B. No exterior lighting shall be permitted within the front yard setback except garden lighting fixtures not exceeding eighteen inches (18") in height above grade. Garden lighting systems shall be linited to 15 watts or less per fixture which shall be at least 10 feet apart from any other garden lighting fixtures.

C. The instalation of all permanent exterior lighting above eighteen inches (18") in height shall be subject to the design review process and the following standards:

1. Illumination shall be limited to lighting the areas of entrances, gateways, walkways, decks and patios.

2. The maximum height of any free-standing light fixtures shall be ten feet (10') above grade when installed behind any setback. All fixtures installed on the exterior of any dwelling of accessory building shall be mounted under the eave line or at a lower height.

D. No exterior lighting shall be permitted within or over City property.

Section Two: Severability. If any part of this ordinance is found to be unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section Three: Statement of Urgency: The City Council finds that because of the uncontrolled proliferation of residential lighting, there is an immediate threat to public welfare if such lighting is not subject to design review.

Section Four: Effective Date. This ordinance is hereby declared to be an urgency ordinance as established in section 65858 of the California Government Code. This ordinance shall take effect immediately upon approval by at least a four-fifths vote of the City Council and shall remain effective for eight months unless repealed or extended as established by State Statute.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ORDINANCE NO. 89-10
ORDINANCE OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA ADDING CHAPTER 14 TO THE CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA MUNICIPAL CODE SETTING FORTH A SEISMIC HAZARDS IDENTIFICATION PROGRAM.

WHEREAS, the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is required under Chapter 250, statutes of 1986; SB 547 (Alquist); Government Code Section 8875 et seq to implement measures to lessen risk to human life and property in the event of an earthquake, by January 1, 1990; and

WHEREAS, said Government Code Section requires an identification of all unreinforced masonry buildings and the implementation of measures to eliminate the potential for structural failure; and

WHEREAS, such a seismic hazards identification program is consistent with California Health and Safety Code sections 19160-19169.

NOW, THEREFORE, the Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea does ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. Chapter 14 is hereby added to the Carmel-by-the-Sea Municipal Code to read:

Chapter 14
SEISMIC HAZARDS IDENTIFICATION PROGRAM

Sections:
14.02 Purpose.
14.04 Definitions.
14.06 Scope of program.
14.08 Building categories and implementation schedule.
14.10 Engineering reports.
14.12 Review of reports.
14.14 Responsibility of the building owners.
14.16 Program status reports to the City Council.
14.18 Remedies.

14.02.010 Purpose. It is found and declared that in the event of a significant local earthquake, loss of life or serious injury may result from damage to or collapse of buildings in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. It is generally acknowledged that the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea will experience earthquakes in the future due to its proximity to both the San Andreas and Hayward faults. The purpose of this ordinance is to promote public safety by identifying those buildings in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea which exhibit structural deficiencies and by determining the severity and extent of those deficiencies in relation to their potential for causing loss of life or injury. The City Council finds it desirable to identify the hazards that these deficiencies may pose to occupants of buildings, adjacent structures and pedestrians in the event of an earthquake.

14.04.010 Definitions. (a) "Bearing wall" means any wall supporting a floor or roof where the total superimposed load exceeds one hundred (100) pounds per linear foot, or any unreinforced masonry wall (over six (6) feet high) supporting its own weight.

(b) "Building," for the purpose of determining occupant load, means any contiguous or interconnected structure; for purposes of engineering evaluation, means the entire structure or a portion thereof which will respond to seismic forces as a unit.

(c) "Capacity for transfer" means the maximum allowable capacity of a structural system or connection to resist in a ductile manner of the lateral forces it would encounter due to earthquake forces.

(d) "Civil engineer or structural engineer" means a licensed civil or structural engineer registered by the State of California pursuant to the rules and regulations of Title 16, Chapter 5 of the California Administrative Code.

(e) "External hazard" means an object attached to or forming the exterior facade of a building which may fall into pedestrians or occupants of adjacent buildings. Examples of this type of hazard include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Nonstructural exterior wall panels, such as masonry infill or decorative precast concrete.
2. Parapets.
3. Marguees, awnings or other roof-like projections from a building.
4. Masonry or stone wall veneer and wall ornamentation, including cornices or other decorative appendages.
5. Masonry chimneys.
6. Tile roofing.
7. Wall signs and exterior lighting fixtures hung from a building exterior.
8. Fire escapes or balconies.

(f) "Geometry" means a building's shape or configuration, including setbacks of wall/column lines, reentrant corners, discontinuities in vertical and horizontal lateral force disphragms, open storefront and building stiffness variations due to the distribution of resisting elements or the use of materials or differing properties within the same structural element, or other irregularities in plan or elevation.

(g) "Occupants" means the total occupant load of a building determined by Table 33-A of the 1973 Uniform Building Code or the actual maximum number of occupants in that building if that number is less than seventy-five percent (75%) of the number determined by using Table 33-A. The number of actual occupants may be documented by counting actual seating capacity if permanent seating is provided in the occupancy, or by employee and client counts which can be substantiated as a practical maximum use of the space in the building. The chief building official will establish the procedure for documenting occupant loads.

(h) "Solution" means any approved method that will provide for the transfer of lateral forces through a system or connection to a degree which will substantially eliminate a potential collapse. A general description of the methods and materials to be used shall be included in sufficent detail to allow for a cost estimate of the solution of be made (i.e., adding shear walls, overlaying horizontal diaphragms, strengthening critical connections, etc.).

(i) "Unreinforced masonry (URM)" building means any building containing walls constructed wholly or partially with any of the following materials:

1. Unreinforced brick masonry.
2. Unreinforced concrete masonry.
3. Hollow clay tile.
4. Adobe or unburned clay masonry.

14.06.010 Scope of program. (a) Applicability. The following buildings in Carmel-By-The-Sea shall be required to have an engineering report submitted to the Department of Community Planning and Building to determine: (i) the existence, nature and extent of structural failure; and (ii) the existence, nature and extent of deficiencies in the anchoring of external hazards:

1. Buildings constructed of unreinforced masonry (URM), except those of less than one thousand nine hundred (1,900) square feet containing six (6) or fewer occupants.
2. Buildings constructed prior to January 1, 1935 containing one hundred (100) or more occupants.
3. Buildings constructed prior to August 1, 1976 containing three hundred (300) or more occupants.

(b) Exemptions. The following buildings are exempt from the engineering support requirements:

1. Buildings which have been structurally upgraded in substantial accordance with the seismic requirements of either the Los Angeles Division 88 Standard for URM buildings or the 1973, or later, edition of the Uniform Building Code.
2. Buildings whose uses are subject to amortization under this code; provided that, upon the termination of the nonconforming use, such a building shall be required to be rehabilitated to the then current lateral force requirements in the Uniform Building Code prior to occupancy by a conforming use.
3. Historic Buildings.

14.08.010 Building categories and implementation schedule. (a) Building Categories. The categories of buildings within the scope of this ordinance are set forth in Table A, below.

(b) Owner Notification. The owners of buildings in categories I through III, as listed in Table A, except those designated as historic buildings, shall be notified within six (6) months of enactment of this ordinance by the Department of Community Planning and Building of the City of Carmel-By-The-Sea that their buildings are required to have an engineering report submitted to the City. Owners of designated historic buildings, as defined in Chapter 16.49, shall be notified within eighteen (18) months of enactment of this ordinace.

(c) Implementation Schedule. The owners of buildings in categories I through III in Table A, below, must submit engineering reports within one year from the date of mailed notice by the City.

TABLE A

CATEGORY	DESCRIPTION
1	All unreinforced masonry buildings
2	All pre-1935 buildings other than unreinforced masonry buildings with an occupant load of 100 or more.
3	All buildings with occupant load of 300 or more constructed between January 1, 1935 and August 1976.

14.10.010 Engineering reports. (a) Reports shall be prepared by a civil or structural engineer licensed in the State of California.

(b) Purpose. To investigate, in a thorough and unambiguous fashion, a building's structural systems that resist the forces imposed by earthquakes and to determine if any individual portion or combination of these systems is inadequate to prevent a structural failure (collapse or partial collapse).

(c) General. Each building shall be treated as an individual case without prejudice or comparison to similar type or age buildings which may have greater or lesser earthquake resistance. Generalities or stereotypes are to be avoided in the evaluation process by focusing on the specifics of the structural system of the building in question and the local geology of the land on which the building is constructed.

(d) Level of Investigation. Some buildings will require extensive testing and field investigation to uncover potential structural deficiencies, while others will allow the same level of overall evaluation by a less complicated process due to simplicity of design or the availability of original or subsequent alteration design and construction documents.

It is the responsibilility of the engineer performing the evaluation to choose the appropriate level of investigation which will produce a report that is complete and can serve as a sound basis for a conclusion on the collapse hazard the building may present.

(e) Format for the Report. The following is a basic outline of the format each engineering report should follow. This outline is not to be construed as a constraint on the professional preparing the report, but rather to provide a skeleton framework within which individual approaches to assembling the information required by the ordinance may be accomplished. It also will serve as a means for the City to evaluate the completeness of each report.

1. General Information. A description of the building including: (i) the street location, lot number, block number, Assessor's Parcel number; (ii) the type of occupancy use within the building, with separate uses that generate different occupant loads indicated on a plan showing the square footage of each different use; (iii) plans and elevations showing the location, type and extent of lateral force resisting elements in the building (both horizontal and vertical elements); (iv) a description of the construction materials used in the structural elements and information regarding their present condition; (v) the date of original construction, if known, and the date, if known, of any subsequent additions or substantial structural alterations of the building; and (vi) the name and address of the original designer and contractor, if known, and the name and address of the designer and contractor, if known, for any subsequent additions or substantial structural alterations.
2. Investigation and Evaluation of Structural Systems. All items to be investigated and the methods of investigation for each type of building under consideration are contained in Appendices A and B, available from the City's Department of Community Planning and Building.
3. Test Reports. All field and laboratory test results shall be included in the report. Evaluation of the significance of these test results shall be made with regard to each structural system or typical connection being evaluated. This evaluation may be limited to a statement of the adequacy or inadequacy of the system or connection based on the lateral load demand it would be required to resist by calaulation. If tests reveal inadequacy, a conceptual solution must be included in the report.
4. Conclusions. Based on the demand/capacity ratio and the specific evaluation items contained in Appendices A or B, a statement shall be provided explaining the overall significance of the deficiencies found to exist in the building's lateral force resisting system regarding potential collapse or partial collapse failure.
5. Recommendations. An appropriate solution, which could be used to strengthen the structure to alleviate any collapse or partial collapse threat, shall be specified.

(f) Exceptions and Alternatives. Esceptions to the report requirements may be granted by the Chief Building Official upon review of a written request from the engineer preparing the report. Such a request shall provide evidence that the required tiems(s) can be determined by alternate means or that a conclusions can be made about the item without following the solution called for in the appropriate appendix. In no case will an exception be granted which will result in an item not being completely evaluated. The decision of the Chief Building Official in granting exceptions is final.

14.12.010 Review of reports. (a) The City may utilize the services of civil or structural engineers to assist the Chief Building Official in determining if the submitted engineering reports conform to the requirements of this chapter

(b) The cost of this review shall be recovered by a fee assessed against the building owner based on the time required for the review. This fee amount shall be deducted from the plan checking fee collected for any future construction work that deals directly with correcting any of the structural inadequacies specified in the engineering report.

(c) Copies of the engineering reports shall be available to interested individuals for a standard copying fee or may be reviewed at the Department of Community Planning and Building Office.

14.14.010 Responsibilities of the building owners. (a) Notification of Building Tenants. A building owner shall notify all tenants, in writing, that a structural seismic investigation has been performed and that the report is available at the Community Planning and Building offices. This notice must be sent within (30) days of the date the report is submitted to the City.

(b) Letter of Intent. A building owner shall submit a letter to the Department of Community Planning and Bulding within one (1) year of the date the engineering report was received by the Department of Community Planning and Building, indicating the owner's intentions for dealing with the potential seismic inadequacies found to exist in the building.

14.16.010 Program status reports to the City Council. The Chief Building Official shall submit a report to the City Council on the status of the seismic hazards indentification program when completed. The report shall include information regarding the number of buildings analyzed, the severity of the structural inadequacies discovered and any actions taken by individual building owners to correct these inadequacies.

14.18.010 Remedies. It shall be unlawful for the owner of a building identified as being included in the scope of this ordinance to fail to submit a report on either building collapse hazards or external hazards or fail to submit a letter of intent within the time period specified in section 14.08.010. The following remedies are available to the City:

(a) The City may seek injunctive relief on behalf of the public to enjoin a building owner's violation of this ordinance.

(B) These remedies are not exclusive.

SECTION 2. The City Council hereby finds that this ordinance will have no significant adverse environmental impact and is exempt from the provisions of the California Environmental Quality Act.

SECTION 3. Violations. Any person, or firm or corporation, whether as principal or agent, employed or otherwise, violating or causing or permitting the violation of the provisions of this ordinance is guilty of an infraction. Any part of any building erected contrary to the provisions of this ordinance is hereby declared to be unlawful and a public nuisance and the City Attorney shall, upon order of the City Council, immediately commence action for the abatement or removal thereof. Should any person, firm or corporation violate the terms of this ordinance and any action is authorized by the City Council or the City Attorney or is in fact filed for said violations, no other action shall be taken on any application filed by or on behalf of said person, firm or corporation until the litigation has been resolved.

SECTION 4. Severability. If any part of this ordinance is found to be unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

SECTION 5. Effective date. The ordinance shall take effect 30 days after final adoption. Any application not yet approved upon the effective date of this ordinance shall be reviewed under the terms of this ordinance. Any application approved prior to the effective date of this ordinance shall be allowed to continue through normal permit processes and project completion.
